Revolution Wavering In Northern Mexico

Mexican Rebel Officers Seek Refuge on American Soil, Declaring Breach Occurred Between Civil and Military Authorities in Mexican Town—Federal Drive to Break Backbone of Revolution Gathers Momentum.

Nogales, Ariz., March 14 (AP).—Signs that the revolutionary movement is wavering in its northern Mexico strongholds appeared today.

Trouble in Agua Prieta, Sonora, was evidenced when Rogerio Loreto, Presidente Municipal, and a group of Mexican rebel officers sought refuge on American soil at Douglas, Ariz., and declared that there had been a breach between civil and military authorities in the Mexican town, leaving it in an uncertain position, so far as the revolutionary movement is concerned. Agua Prieta had been in the possession of revolutionary troops for several days.

Developments in Nogales, Sonora, headquarters of the revolution in the north, indicated that negotiations may have been started by federal and ravolutionary military leaders for a bloodless end to the uprising there. At the same time preparations for troop movements forecast possible fighting near the border.

General Francisco R. Manzo, second in command of the revolutionary troops, and General Abelardo Rodriguez, head of the federal forces in the northwest, held a secret meeting here yesterday.

No Immediate Truce Expected.

The meeting started reports that a peaceable end to the uprising in the north may have been sought, but Rodriguez's departure for Naco, Sonora, to communicate with the loyal General Augustino Olachea, was held as evidence no truce was to be expected for the present.

The Douglas, Ariz., dispatch reported today that it had been informed that Olachea had announced he would receive reinforcements from the Rodriguez forces along the border through American territory.

The possession of Naco by the federals is a thorn in the side of the revolutionary movement, since it is an important point between the rebel strongholds in the states of Sonora and Chihuahua.

Olachea, with 1,200 men, mostly Yaqui and Mayo Indians, is firmly entrenched at Naco, and has been in communication with General P. Elias Calles, commander in chief of the federal armies.

Large stores of guns and ammunition are said to have been delivered to the federals of northwest Mexico from American territory.

Federal Drive in North

Mexico City, March 14 (AP).—The drive designed by the Mexican government to break the backbone of the revolution in the north gathered momentum today.

The federal columns moved relentlessly from eastern Coahuila upon Torreon, held by the principal rebel army under General J. Gonzalo Escobar.

Retreating rebels resorted to skirmishing and desultory fighting to harass their attackers and some casualties were reported. Generally speaking, however, their principal concern was to reach the comparative safety at Torreon.

One hundred and fifty miles to the south of Torreon General Calles moved his headquarters to Frio, Zacatecas, near the Durango border, to direct from there concentration of the huge federal army which he relied on to take Torreon and smash the rebellion with a decisive blow.

Natural Advantages of Stronghold

There were indications that if the rebels choose to defend their stronghold its capture may be more difficult than some of the more optimistic have anticipated. The city is in the center of a hilly region affording fine natural fortifications and, if properly defended, might resist a strong assault for some time.

Forces of General Calles engaged in subjugation of Durango fought with a small rebel force about halfway between Canitas and Durango City yesterday and killed 14 Rebels and wounded about 40 others.

Seven were taken prisoners and executed.

Aviators scouting the advance from Saltillo to Torreon reported the fleeing rebels had abandoned their trains for lack of fuel, in one case turning over coaches and locomotive to block the track. Late yesterday it was said the retreat had become disorderly and unorganized. The rebel rear guard was west of Parras.

President Gil Confident.

In an interview President Emilio Portes Gil expressed complete confidence that the revolution was practically over and that the last chance of the rebels to win in the field had passed. The president appeared almost carefree.

It was said that federal troops had captured nine locomotives and 60 cars of supplies and ammunition from the rebels fleeing from Saltillo to Torreon. This was presumed to be part of the rebel loot at Monterey and Saltillo.

More Americans for Border Duty.

Washington, March 14 (AP).—Another small detachment of American troops has reported for duty on the Mexican border to reinforce those sent two days ago to Naco, Arizona, to protect that town and the water supply of the city of Bisbee.

Probe Mexican Rebel's Release.

Washington, March 14 (AP).—Secretary Kellogg announced today that an investigation has been started to determine the circumstances surrounding the release of the Mexican rebel, General Borquez, by immigration authorities at Nogales, Ariz., Tuesday night. Under treaty he should have been interned.

Lunn Criticises Report Favoring Phone Rate Raise

State Public Service Commissioner Says Court Action Restraining His Board Means Courts Are Becoming Regulatory Bodies Themselves—Analyzes Telephone Company's Figures.

Albany, March 14 (AP).—The opinion of the special master in the New York Telephone Company rate case that the rates fixed by the Public Service Commission do not afford "a fair return" to the company on the "fair value of its properties and investment" was under fire today by George R. Lunn, Public Service Commissioner and former lieutenant governor.

If the report of the special master, Isaac R. Oeland, appointed by the federal district court of southern New York, should be confirmed by the federal courts, said Commissioner Lunn, "it will register the collapse of the power of the Public Service Commission to regulate rates to be charged by the New York Telephone Company and other public utilities of the state."

Mr. Oeland submitted his report Monday. He was appointed in 1924 to hold hearings on the rate question. In the report he recommended that a permanent injunction be issued against the commission, the attorney general of the state and others restraining them from enforcing orders based on the rates fixed in 1923 and 1926 and from enforcing penalties for disregard of such charges.

If the courts restrain the commission from enforcing the rates granted to the Telephone Company, said commissioner Lunn in a formal statement issued last night, "then the federal courts are in fact taking over the duties of the Public Service Commission * * * becoming a regulatory body themselves."

In Mr. Lunn's view, the special master in drawing up his recommendations in this case "Surrendered completely to the theory that fair value of property must be based on cost of reproduction (of the company's property) new, less observed depreciation."

Using the theory, and granting a going value allowance, the special master, said Commissioner Lunn, placed a value of $693,128,494 on the telephone company's property, of which $593,128,494 is within the state.

The special master contends that the company is entitled to an 8 per cent return on this estimated value of the property.

Net Earnings, Dividends and Surplus.

Giving what he termed "the facts as to the rate of return to the company based on the present rates, the commissioner said:

"In 1927, after deducting from revenue a depreciation reserve of $29,658,693, the New York Telephone Company had a net earnings of 9½ per cent which enabled them to pay 8 per cent on their common stock, besides adding to surplus $4,239,787.

"In 1928, under the present rates, after deducting from revenue $28,326,045 for depreciation reserve, the net earnings were a little short of 10 per cent, enabling the company to pay 8 per cent on the common stock and add to its surplus $5,036,020 * * *.

"The report of special master Oeland permits an increase over existing 1928 rates of approximately $15,360,000. This added to the 1928 net income of $27,554,020, gives an annual net income of $42,914,020. This would give a return of more than 15 per cent on the company's total common stock of $280,000,000."

Weiner Hose Meeting.

A regular monthly meeting of Weiner Hose Company will be held tonight. After the meeting there will be a roast pork supper.

Gerlach Said He Was Robbed In County Jail

Told Judge Shufeldt in Police Court That Negro Prisoner in Jail Stole $400 From Him on Wednesday—Arrested for Driving While Intoxicated.

If the story that Benjamin Gerlach of the Sawkill road told Judge Shufeldt in police court this morning was true he is a very unfortunate man. Wednesday afternoon he was arrested on North Front street by Officer Welch, who charged him with operating an automobile while intoxicated. Gerlach was removed to the county jail, where he spent that night. He told Judge Shufeldt today that while a prisoner in the county jail Wednesday afternoon one of the negro prisoners at the jail robbed him of $400.

According to Gerlach's story he received a check from the electric corporation for allowing high tension wires to pass over his property on the Sawkill road. This was several days ago and he immediately cashed the check at an uptown bank. He said that when he was arrested Wednesday he had $400 in eight $50 bills in an envelope in his pocket.

He was positive he had the money when he was admitted to the jail for he kept his hand on the envelope in his pocket. He said that he was placed in a cell, and that while leaning against the barred door the negro prisoner approached him, reached into the pocket, withdrew the envelope, abstracted the money and threw the empty envelope back into the cell. Then to add insult to injury the negro placed his fingers on his nose and ran away.

Gerlach claimed that he can not see out of one eye, owing to a recent illness, and that the negro approached him on his blind side as he leaned against the barred door. He was unable to give chase to the negro, he said, because his cell door was locked while the negro had the freedom of the jail corridor. Gerlach said he could not attract the attention of the sheriff's office until this morning when he told his story. He said that the jailer brought two negro prisoners before him and that he positively identified one of the negroes as the one who had robbed him, but the negro denied the theft.

"What about Gerlach's story?" asked Judge Shufeldt, turning to Sergeant Phinney, who had entered the court room. The sergeant replied that Gerlach had told him of being robbed in jail and that he had immediately gotten in touch with the sheriff's office, and was informed that an investigation had been made and the negro searched but the money Gerlach alleged was stolen had not been found.

In reply to the judge's query as to what disposition he wanted made of the charge of driving while intoxicated, Gerlach said he would like to get in touch with his lawyer, and the hearing was adjourned to next Monday morning and bail fixed at $200.

Fog on River Halts Steamer

Fog Halted Steamer Poughkeepsie at Poughkeepsie Where She Spent Wednesday Night—Cornell Line Getting Tugs Ready for Towing Season.

The Hudson river was hidden under a dense fog bank Wednesday night and this morning. In fact the fog was so dense Wednesday night that when the steamer Poughkeepsie, of the Central Hudson Line, reached that city from New York it was thought best to berth her there for the night. Later the Poughkeepsie left the Bridge City and reached Kingston shortly after noon. She left again for New York later in the day.

At the Cornell Steamboat Company office here it was stated that the first tow of the season for upriver points was expected to leave New York city on Friday night.

At the Cornell shops on the Strand there was a busy session getting the Cornell Line tugs Perseverance, Hartt, Ronan and Senator Rice ready to go into commission. It was expected that some of the tugs would be ready to leave the shops during the afternoon.

There is but very little floating ice in the river between Kingston and Poughkeepsie and what ice there is will not interfere with navigation, it is said.

Laborers Sought By Water Board

If weather conditions are favorable the water board is planning to resume the work of laying the pipe line from Woodstock to Cooper's Lake on Monday morning. Work of laying the pipe line was interrupted by winter weather. The water board is advertising for laborers who will be paid at the rate of $4 per day and must furnish their own transportation. Those who desire a job should apply to John H. Harrison at Woodstock on Monday. Mr. Harrison who is a former superintendent of the water board, has charge of the work of laying the pipe line.

Wanderers Play Tonight.

The Wanderers and Irish-Americans will meet at Salvation Army Hall, North Front street, tonight at 8 o'clock.

Describe Actions Of Auto Before Connor Was Killed

Witnesses in $100,000 Damage Suit Tell How Thompson Car Ran Off Road Into Ditch, Turned Over, Righted Itself and Finally Hit Tree.

Wednesday afternoon the $100,000 action brought by Mrs. Florence S. Connor of Brooklyn against Ralph M. Thompson of Pine Hill and New York was continued in Supreme court. Mrs. Connor seeks to recover damages for death of her husband who was killed at Ashokan on June 24, last, while a guest in the Thompson car. The car overturned at Winchell's store and Mr. Connor was thrown out and killed. Negligence on the part of Jane Thompson, 19 year old, daughter of defendant, is alleged.

Floyd Terwilliger, Ashokan, was the first witness called. He was driving toward Phoenicia from his home when, he testified, he heard brakes applied very harshly. He saw the Studebaker zig-zag off the beaten track of the highway to its right and run on the shoulder of the road. The car was always to its right of the center of the road as it proceeded down the road. He said the car after passing him went down the road. He stopped his car near the church and backed into the driveway and went back. He testified he was going to his camp some distance beyond the Winchell's store corner and he said he was not attempting to drive into the Brown Station road. His car was a green Buick sedan.

Cross-examined by Mr. Carter, Mr. Terwilliger said he had never heard that he was the man who was thought to be responsible for the accident to the Thompson car. He said he had not, and had not seen another car turn into the Brown Station road just ahead of the Thompson car.

Saw the Car "Wave."

William Personeus, who tended the gas tanks at the store, was next called. Mr. Personeus resided on the "Hogs-back" road at Shokan. He was on the front porch of the store watching the cars pass. He looked up the road and saw the Studebaker car come over the hill several hundred feet away. When 100 feet from the intersection of the Kingston-Oneonta highway and the road crossing to Brown Station, he saw the Studebaker "wave" and come on to the right of the road, gradually coming nearer to the right hand side of the road. It just missed the gas tanks and tree at the store and shortly after crossed to the left of the road and hit a Chevrolet car of one Dutcher and then come back to the right of the road and turned over and threw out some people. It righted itself and headed back up the road and ran into a tree and stopped. He said the car was coming fast. A car crossed between the store and gas pumps over the gravel intersection some time prior to the time the Studebaker car approached. The Studebaker car was on the hill on "Hogs-back" several hundred feet away when the car turned into the cross-road and went on toward the dam.

Schenck Tells About Car.

J. D. Schenck was called and testified to the weight, power and size of the Studebaker car. Mr. Schenck is the local Studebaker agent and has sold Studebakers since 1914.

Aline Mackay, who was seated in the front seat of the Thompson car between Miss Thompson, who drove, and Mr. Connor, who was killed, was called. She recalled getting in the car at Pine Hill but remembered nothing until she came to at the Kingston Hospital after the accident. She was injured and is also suing Mr. Thompson for damages. She was a friend of Miss Thompson and had been a guest at the Thompson home for some time.

Henry H. Graef of Brooklyn, financial secretary of the Furness, Withy Company steamboat lines, was called. He said Mr. Thompson earned $15,000 a year as traffic manager.

Smith Heard Gravel Fly.

Newton Smith of Shokan was called. He resides next to the church at the corner and was on his porch. He heard a noise and heard the gravel fly and looked and saw the Studebaker car on the left hand side of the road where it ran into the Chevrolet car of Dutcher which was passing up the road. It then swerved to the right again and ran a distance, then swerved to the left, turned over and bounded on its wheels and ran back up the road in the direction from which it had been coming and crashed into a tree. He did not see the car until it was in the intersection. The only other car he saw at the time was the Dutcher car which was struck by the Studebaker.

Missed Miller's Car.

Ernest Miller of Krumville, who with his wife, Harold Davis and his sister, Mabel Davis, were going on a picnic and had stopped at the store to get provisions, was called. The car had been parked, between the gas pumps, the tree and the store on the north side of the store. He came out the store and saw the car about 100 feet up the road from the store. The two right wheels were off the macadam to the right. The car sheared off still more to the right and just missed the car of witness, and tree. The car turned then to the left and witness said it ran a distance and to the ditch, bounded back and turned over, righted itself and started up the road and hit a

New Provisions Made to Traffic Law in State

New Additions to State Traffic Law Now in Effect of Interest to Every One Driving a Car—What Additions Are.

Chief of Police J. Allan Wood has received from Secretary W. P. Capes of the State Mayors' Conference a communication outlining additions that have been made to the state traffic law, which will prove of interest to every one who operates an automobile.

Secretary Capes in his communication states: "The new vehicle and traffic law, which is now in effect, does not change the old motor vehicle law or the general highway traffic law in any way, except to add new provisions relating to automatic control (stop and go) signals. These new provisions which are now in effect in every city and first class village, except New York city, and repeal all conflicting local ordinances are as follows:

Section two, subdivision 24, Traffic control signals. A traffic control signal shall mean a signalling device, either hand or electrically operated, in which different colors become alternately visible for fixed periods of time during which traffic shall comply with the meaning conveyed by the colors shown.

Section 84. Meaning of colors. Wherever traffic at any intersection is regulated by a traffic control signal, the following colors may be used and none other, and those colors herein authorized shall, when lighted, indicate as follows, except as provided in sections eighty-five and eighty-six:

Red requires that all traffic shall stop and remain standing.

Green requires that traffic shall move.

Amber, when used, shall only warn traffic that the colors in the signal are about to change. No traffic shall enter an intersection controlled by a traffic control signal while the amber is lighted. Amber when used in precautionary signals without other colors, either fixed or flashing, shall mean proceed with caution.

Section 85. Pedestrians' rights and duties at controlled intersections. At intersectioin where traffic is controlled by traffic cotrolled signals, pedestrians shall cross the street only in the direction of moving traffic and operators of vehicles, when turning, shall yield the right of way to pedestrians when so crossing.

Section 86. Turning at intersections. At all intersections when traffic is controlled by traffic control signals, turns shall be made on the green light only, except as otherwise directed by police officer, or where diagonal streets, short blocks or other unusual traffic conditions make a variation necessary, in which cases directions of traffic shall be clearly posted.

Erne and Zucca Will Play at Benedictine Ball

John P. Erne's Imperial Broadcasting Orchestra and Paul Zucca's Orchestra will furnish the music at the Benedictine Ball to be held at the New York state armory on Easter Monday night. These orchestras will be augmented for the occasion and as in past years will undoubtedly render music that will please both dancers and music lovers. The committee in charge in selecting the local orchestras believe Kingston musicians are as capable of furnishing music for an event of this kind as any that could be secured elsewhere, as the famous orchestras can never be secured, due to contracts and the limited amount of money to be expended.

The program of entertainment is still in the formative stage, but the committee assures all that it will compare favorably with any that has ever been staged at the armory. Local and out of town talent will be among the entertainers.

The other committees are working faithfully and looking forward to a great success on the Monday evening after Easter.

Check Room.

Miss Kathryn Welch is the capable chairlady who for several years past has handled this end of the ball to the satisfaction of all. She will be assisted by Mrs. John Redden, Mrs. James Welch, Miss Mary Cullen, Miss Loretta Macholdt, Miss Kathleen McDonough and Miss Anna Welch.

Lemonade Booth.

The thirsty should have no fears that their throats will remain parched for Mrs. Frank Rist is the chairlady at the lemonade booth and she and her committee will serve lemonade ice cold throughout the evening. The following will assist the chairlady: Mrs. Conrad Schuler, Mrs. Frank Schatzel, Mrs. Albert Bott, Mrs. Augustus Schatzel, Mrs. Anna McLung, Miss Anna Kraus and Miss Connie Ringwald.

Ambulance Calls Here.

The city ambulance on Wednesday removed George Jones from 17 Prospect street to the Benedictine Hospital. This morning the ambulance removed Mrs. Krom from Wrentham street to the Kingston Hospital, and Mrs. Leroy Lasher from 173 Smith avenue to the Benedictine Hospital.

Bills to Provide For Items Vetoed By Gov. Roosevelt

Alternative Measures Containing $56,000,000 Items Stricken from Executive Budget Will Go to Legislature Monday Night—Leaders Deny Right of Procedure Proposed by Governor.

Albany, March 14 (AP).—The question of just how the Legislature was to provide for the $56,000,000 in items stricken from the executive budget yesterday by Governor Roosevelt's veto confronted state lawmakers today.

The Governor announced last night that he would place alternative measures before the Legislature, one of them containing the itemized procedure urged by Republican members. But a simultaneous pronouncement of the majority leaders was that the constitutional time for the executive to introduce budget appropriation bills had passed. They intimated that they would proceed to prepare bills covering the deficiency in the budget provision themselves.

These same leaders said the Governor under the constitution can not now introduce the measures without unanimous consent of both Senate and Assembly and this consent, they strongly indicated, would not be given.

The Governor said he intended to send to the Legislature Monday night a supplementary message accompanied by two bills, one to provide for segregation of lump sums by the Governor and an alternative measure itemizing each unit—the Republican plan. Both bills will be for the same total.

"I will take whichever form of the bill the Legislature accepts," the Governor said in his announcement. "Both forms avoid the unconstitutionality of the budget passed by the legislature and this in the last analysis was the reason of the veto."

Executive's Power Infringed.

The Governor had announced after vetoing the revised budget that he considered as an infringement on the executive's powers the revision by fiscal committees of the Senate and Assembly so as to provide that instead of the governor alone deciding upon allocation of the lump sum the chairman of the two fiscal committees sit with him in such decisions.

He saw "serious objections from the point of good business administrations" in the items bill to be presented as an alternative.

"Sound business administration calls for a lump sum appropriation for the purpose of reorganization," he said. "A refusal by the legislature to allow these proposed lump sums in constitutional form will prevent reorganization.

"If line items are required for the state institutions, a false bookkeeping picture will be presented at the end of the fiscal year. In other words, if a lump sum appropriation were allowed it would prevent the appearance of a large surplus in certain accounts and a large deficit in other accounts."

He explained his veto of the revised budget items as intended "to prevent an unconstitutional raid on the executive budget system."

SENTENCED TO DIE FOR MURDER OF ACTRESS.

New York, March 14 (AP).—Frederick W. Edel, 29-year-old electrician convicted of the murder of Mrs. Emeline O. Harrington, actress, was sentenced today by Judge Charles C. Nott, Jr., in general sessions court to die in the electric chair at Sing Sing in the week of April 22.

After the sentence, Edel's attorney announced he would file an appeal, a step that would automatically postpone Edel's execution.

TEN WORKERS DIE IN SHOE FACTORY FIRE

Montevideo, Uruguay, March 14 (AP).—Ten shoe factory workers were dead today, their bodies burned almost to a crisp, as a result of a factory fire in the center of the city yesterday. The workers took refuge in a lavatory of the building where firemen were unable to reach them.

RUSSELL HARLOW, 6 YEARS ATTACKED BY POLICE DOG

Uptown Stores Ready For Dress Up Display

Every Kind of Merchandise Represented in Windows Which Have Been Especially Decorated for Big Annual Event—Windows to Be Unveiled at 7:30 Tonight—Display Continues Balance of Week.

Many uptown windows were veiled today behind mysterious curtains while employes labored to dress the windows for the annual Spring Dress Up Week display of the Uptown Merchants' Association which will be held the remainder of the week. The unveiling of the windows which will represent every kind of merchandise display will be held this evening at 7:30 o'clock. At that time the judges appointed to judge the merits of the various windows will view the displays and later render their decision as to prize winners.

The public is invited to turn out this evening and inspect the window displays which the merchants have installed. All that is new and up-to-the minute will be exhibited and there undoubtedly will be some very handsome displays since there is keen competition among the merchants to win the cup which is awarded the winner.

Dress Up Week will be continued Friday and Saturday and if it is impossible for anyone to view the windows this evening when they are unveiled it will be well worth while to visit the uptown sections at some time during the display.

Open Air Auto Show.

In conjunction with the showing of spring merchandise will be a big open air automobile show on Wall and North Front streets. This show is being put on by the automobile men of the city and included in the exhibit will be a large number of models of the newest in automobiles.

The windows will be unveiled promptly at 7:30 o'clock and traffic will be directed by a special police force assigned to duty in the uptown area by Chief Wood.

Wall street, Fair street and Clinton avenue from Main street north will be one way streets as will North Front street from Crown street. In driving through the business section automobilists will find traffic officers at points of vantage to direct traffic. This traffic regulation will be in effect from 5 until 10 o'clock. At 5 o'clock the automobile men will begin positioning their cars and parkers are requested to be off the streets by that time in order not to delay the placing of the cars to be exhibited at the automobile show.

Income Taxes Exceed Estimates

Washington, March 14 (AP).—Income taxes pouring into the treasury vaults from all sections of the country are exceeding estimates made by treasury officials.

Secretary Mellon said today he felt there not only would be no deficit for the fiscal year 1929, but that there would be a comfortable surplus.

First payments of the income tax on March 15 of last year totaled $597,137,752 and officials expected that this amount would be exceeded this year. The corporation taxes this year are one and one-half per cent lower than they were in 1927 when that tax was 13½ per cent. It is expected, however, that the lower rate would bring in a greater return. Total income taxes collected in the calendar year of 1928 were $2,169,417,231.

Mellon said that the increase over what had been expected on Wednesday amounted to $4,000,000 more than had been estimated.

He pointed out that appropriations that may be made at the extra session of Congress and the $45,000,000 that must be paid railroads on retroactive mail rate increases upheld by the Supreme court would not come out of the funds for the present year, but out of the revenues for the fiscal year 1930, starting next July 1.

Napanoch Man Killed by Train

The body of Frank Rosencranse, 75 years old, of Napanoch, was found along the railroad tracks of the New York, Ontario & Western railroad near Ellenville on Tuesday. The aged man apparently had been struck by a train and instantly killed. He resided alone in Napanoch and his nearest relatives are two nieces. His wife and mother died several years ago. The body was taken in charge by Undertaker H. B. Humiston and funeral services will be held Saturday morning at 10 o'clock from the Humiston funeral parlors at Kerhonkson. Interment in the Porter cemetery, near Eureka.

ZULU TALKS IN OXFORD TONGUE

Charleston, S. C.—A story right out of an adventure magazine, jumping from the jungles of Africa to Harvard university, from the capitol at Washington to the Florida hurricane, was unfolded recently at the city police station by Romeo Christopher, son of a Zulu chieftain and head guide for Theodore Roosevelt in his 1911 African expedition.

The man had been arrested on a minor charge by request of the Salvation Army. He speaks like an educated Englishman—and yet he had not worn a pair of shoes nor eaten a piece of cooked food until he was thirty-one.

Straight from the African jungle he came, and in Cape Town Theodore Roosevelt picked him for his guide. Even now the Roosevelt family remains the guiding star in his life. Mrs. Nicholas Longworth daughter of the late President, will send him to Harvard university in the spring to study, he says, so that he can go back and teach the white man's religion to his people.

Romeo bears on his temple a scar which a gorilla made in a jungle fight, and on his wrist is a scar from a shark's teeth in the Nile. His hip shows the place where a rattlesnake's fangs bit into him.

Father Still Living.

"My father is living today—he is one hundred and twelve—and my mother, Lucile, is one hundred and nine. She was one of his 53 wives," Romeo said. "I, myself, had seven wives; they were given to me by my father on my twenty-first birthday.

"The youngest one I brought with me to this country five years ago. She and my baby—two years old—were killed in the Florida hurricane last fall. I was truck farming there.

"The other six wives are still in Zuzuland. The Methodist church says I can have but one, so I shall pick one of them when I return and keep her.

"I am now enrolled in Harvard, but go there in the spring to study religion. I saw Mrs. Longworth in Washington before I went South. She was a young girl when the colonel came to Africa—I carried her across a river on my shoulders. Young Teddy and Mr. Kermet were there, too.

"They sent me to Cardiff, Wales, and London to be educated, so I could come back and teach my people. Then I came to this country, later."

He detailed some of the native foods—green gourds, raw venison, bananas and other natural food.

"Would I like to go back to that? No, sir—I want pork chops and ham and eggs, and rice, and grits and gravy, and gumbo—that's what I want. I know the white man's way of living and I like it."

The subject of conversation naturally got around to liquors at this point.

Wine Was Old Stuff.

"Long years before the white man came we had our wine," Romeo said. "Fermented fruit juices, and sugar cane. But when the white man came, he taught us to distill it—and how we do like it. But this stuff they call corn whisky"—he made a wry face to illustrate his opinion.

Christopher has a mustache, a suggestion of a goatee, and a partially bald head. He is of good height, and robust. He speaks with the accent of a cultivated Englishman, but his laugh is the negro's own low, melodious and bursting from his whole body.

He has preached at negro churches in Charleston, and powerful sermons they must have been, if the samples given at the police station were any indication of his power of oratory. He deplored his situation, being under arrest in the police station, and said that the Salvation Army authorities for whom he worked had been unduly hasty in their action. They had smelled liquor on his breath, but police said he was not drunk when he was brought in.

"I represented Africa on the platform during the Salvation Army's drive for $150,000 some years ago," Romeo said. "I knew General Booth and Miss Evangeline in England."

The man is well posted on current affairs, and has a large amount of native intelligence coupled with his education.

Science Hunts Auto Fuel in Farming Products

St. Louis.—Automobile fuel from farm crops is predicted by Dr. Isaac Lippincott, professor economic research at Washington university.

Petroleum supplies virtually will be exhausted within sixteen years, he believes. Even before that time, in Doctor Lippincott's opinion, "it will be necessary to look to farm crops for automobile fuel."

If chemistry transforms crops into equivalents of gasoline, as well as corn fiber into paper, Doctor Lippincott believes the farmer's financial future is assured.

They Give Up

Paris.—The police are finding it almost impossible to enforce a section of the code Napoleon forbidding women to wear trousers without a permit. So they have decided not to try unless excessive attention is attracted.

House a Home First

A house should be first of all a home, and only secondarily a work of art, for the more nearly it fulfills the first function the greater chance it has to fulfill the second.

Diplomats Must Drive With Liquor

Washington, March 14 (AP).—Driving liquor-laden trucks has been added to the activities of diplomatic attaches as a result of the effort to tighten the prohibition lines around Washington.

Private truck owners who have been entrusted with embassy liquors shipments were warned by Washington police some time ago that they would be arrested if caught with such a load unless accompanied by an attache having credentials proving the right of immunity.

In the first attempt to comply with this policy, the attache who was assigned to accompany the embassy liquor followed the truck in his private automobile. Police objected, however, that this did not give the truck immunity, making it necessary for the attaches to ride with the liquor.

Taking the idea in a sporting spirit, and exemplifying the meticulousness with which the embassies have attempted to comply with rulings affecting the exercise of their immunity under the prohibition law, they apparently have decided to go even further than the police requested.

After hiring a truck to bring in a supply of the legally imported liquor yesterday, an attache of one of the embassies not only rode with it, but personally drove it into the city.

Cured His Rupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 777C Marcellus Ave., Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

EDUCATION AND MORALS.

In Barrie's charming play, "What Every Woman Knows," a Scotch student too poor to buy needed books furtively enters a neighbor's house many times late at night and remains in the library for hours, studying with sustained enthusiasm although fearful that he may be discovered and be mistaken for a burglar. With but a hazy recollection of the story, the Philadelphia Enquirer erroneously states that Barrie's student "breaks into a house and steals" the books he needs by way of introduction to its editorial notice of the case of a young man in White Plains, N. Y., who confesses that he has been stealing automobiles and bicycles in order to obtain money wherewith to pay his way through college.

To the White Plains case may be added an even more remarkable one reported from Washington, where a bootlegger attempted to justify his occupation on the ground that he merely wanted to get money enough to enter one of the leading universities, even seeking to convey the impression that his thirst for knowledge was not less compelling than the thirst of his patrons for strong drink. In these two American instances we have an indirect reminder that modern education, both in fact and in popular estimation, is a purely intellectual and in no sense a moral acquisition.

A vastly different view obtained among the ancients, who regarded education as a training for right living rather than for a livelihood. For example, Isocrates, teacher of "rhetoric" (which with the Greeks had a much wider connotation than it has with us), said, in part, that the educated man is he who lives "in dignified and honorable fashion," who "never becomes the slave of pleasure," who "by misfortune is not unduly cast down," who is "uncorrupted by good fortune" and does not become "arrogant," who ever "retains control" of himself as "an intelligent being"—that the truly educated, in short, are "wise and perfect men, possessed of all the virtues."

DRYING WASHINGTON SOCIETY.

While recognizing the "right" of opponents of the federal prohibition law "openly to work for its repeal," President Hoover in his inaugural address annouced his determination to enforce the law to the utmost of his ability, pointedly remarking that "there would be little traffic in illegal liquor if only criminals patronized it" and calling on good citizens "to assist by their example in stamping out crime and outlawry by refusing participation in and condemning all transactions with illegal liquor." Apparently inspired by this utterance of the new President, and in addition, perhaps, by the Senate's enactment providing five years in prison and $10,000 fine for violations, the Emporia (Kans.) Gazette seems to reach the conclusion that "Washington society" will now consent to be "dry," for it goes on to say:

> No longer will the maraschino peer coyly out of the baccardi cocktail. Never again will the wicked dew, dropping in silver globules from the frosted glass rim, gleam on the white Senatorial vests. * * * Cracked ice will be banished from the drawing-room, where once it soothed the feverish larynx of the Congressman, to the hospital, where it will once more allay the pain of the sick.

Such beautiful optimism will be widely acclaimed, even though the cynical should permit themselves to doubt its whole-hearted sincerity. Pending results, however, it is likely to be regarded as a bit hasty by those world-wise persons inclined to deem it the safer plan to wait and see.

Backfires of winter, coming after a breath of spring, are hard on men but harder on beasts. Migrating birds, betrayed by the weather, have succumbed in great numbers in late blizzards. Deer, elk, bison and mountain sheep in the Northwest have faced bitter cold without food. Many hundred elk in Montana, in danger of starving, have brought cowboys to the rescue. Food is available if the herds can be rounded up and brought where it is stored. It is something new in the world for wild animals to be befriended and fed as if they were domestic creatures. The distinction between wild and tame breaks down as man grows more humane. Man and the lower animals have much in common, and can afford to help each other. The animals do their share.

O. H. Caldwell, a former member of the national radio commission, paints a pleasant picture for travelers in a talk to railroad men. Radio entertainment, he says, will soon be supplied as a matter of course to Pullman patrons. There will be solace even for the passenger in the upper berth. He will have a head phone at his disposal, bringing him the music and foolishness of all the world. And before long he will have television throwing its moving scenes on the ceiling over his head. Yes, the picture is pleasant—if you're minded that way. Many a weary passenger will say it's hard enough already to get any sleep on a sleeping car.

Hitherto the foreign Ambassadors and Ministers at Washington have had their liquor supply from abroad sent to Baltimore, the nearest port, and hired it transported to their official residences, but now the Jones law, as interpreted, ordains that the said Ambassadors and Ministers must buy trucks and drive their liquor loads themselves. But will the questionable gain from this remarkable edict offset the effect of such indignities thrust upon the high representatives of friendly nations?

THAT BODY OF YOURS

GALL BLADDER AILMENTS.

The fact was pointed out some time ago that the amount of gall bladder trouble in poor neighborhoods was considerably less than in neighborhoods where the citizens lived on a richer and more generous diet.

Of course the two factors enter into this.

The poor man is not only going to eat food that is not so rich, but he is going to work or exercise his body and thus use up the food he does eat.

Food that is not used for the workings of the body, becomes a burden on the liver and trouble results.

However in the past a number of cases that were thought to be due to liver and gall bladder trouble were found later to have other conditions such as intestinal ulcer or appendicitis.

It is now possible for physicians and surgeons to be almost certain about gall bladder conditions before operation is attempted.

Dr. W. Snow, New York, reports the study of a series of 800 patients all of whom were suspected of having gall bladder trouble. They were all given the dye by mouth, and an X-ray picture taken of the gall bladder. Of this number 150 were given the drainage test which consists of a small tube inserted in mouth and weighted at its tip so that it goes down through the stomach into the first part of small intestine.

In 90 per cent of these cases the dye test and the drainage tube test agreed.

A gall bladder that gives a normal Graham dye test, and a normal drainage test is usually normal.

Similarly failure to obtain bile from gall bladder by the drainage test usually means failure to get a normal outline of the bladder by the dye test.

Now what do these facts mean to the patient who is suffering or thinks he is suffering with gall bladder trouble?

Simply that his physician or surgeon now has a cross check, an extra check on the condition of the gall bladder, and can thus determine whether or not an operation should be performed.

Remember it is very unwise to neglect these gall bladder conditions. Your doctor will tell you that it is the old, neglected cases, which have caused the patient's health to become run down, and give poor or delayed results by operation.

Very old folks who have not allowed the condition to exist too long, do just as well as younger folks when they undergo the operation.

"My Thirty Years at Sea"

by CAPTAIN GEORGE FRIED

If a sailor inclines to hobbies, as does Fried, it's likely to be expensive as he has the world to collect from. Postage stamps, coins, lamps, birds, paintings and books, all fascinate him. His stamp album contains 12,000 specimens; Mrs. Fried's home is full of lamps. And canaries—they sing to him in both homes.

By CAPT. GEORGE FRIED
[Copyright, 1929, Associated Press]

CHAPTER XVI

I suppose every man has a hobby and the seaman is no exception. In fact, I believe the man who chooses the sea for his vocation would have a number of hobbies if it were not for the fact that it often is an expensive pastime. He is given unusual opportunities in the collection of curios and other articles that may be picked up in various parts of the world.

My first hobby was the collecting of stamps. I was a youngster in Worcester. I went into the postoffice once day and picked up several letters bearing postage stamps which had been thrown away. There was a certain appeal to me about a postage stamp. Its colors and designs intrigued me, but even greater than that was the thought that the stamp had traveled. The idea of adventure in travel, even though it was such an inanimate thing as a stamp, gave it a kind of reality.

So, whenever I was in town the postoffice was always a port of call. Sometimes I had luck, other times I found nothing. But I was persistent and determined. Whenever I started from home my collection, small though it was, was always part of the baggage. I treated the stamps with the same care as my extra clothing and never lost the chance of picking up new ones.

The idea occurred to me one day that I would make my collection unique in that I would never buy one but would have in my album those given to me by friends or received on letters from various parts of the world. Today my collection numbers about 12,000 different specimens, some of them undoubtedly of value.

For a time in my early service I collected coins, but that proved too expensive. Every coin added meant the saving of a corresponding amount in United States currency and before I got very far in a foreign port I had several dollars worth of coins and no money for sightseeing or entertainment. For a while I kept the coins of smaller denominations, but then I decided to abandon the idea not only because they were a total financial loss, in so far as the keepsake was concerned, but also because they were heavy.

After I had established a home I did what I suppose every married man will do—brought home presents for my wife. I bought a Chinese bronze lamp that seemed to please Mrs. Fried, who liked lamps so much that I decided to get others. To this I have added an English barn lantern, a French one of wrought iron, one of Italian made in bronze and a German mahogany floor lamp. Each lamp is distinctive of the country it represents and because of the diversity in design the group is interesting as well from an artistic standpoint. For the time being, however, I have enough lamps in the house.

As far back as I can remember every vessel on which I shipped had pets. Seamen have a fondness for pets that is not always found among landsmen. Perhaps a pet of one kind or another takes away the loneliness that a seaman sometimes experiences. Pets on shipboard are given every consideration and, when a vessel gets in trouble and it is necessary to abandon ship, the birds or animals are taken along if the men are saved, sometimes at great risk.

While on the Bremen run our ships often brought thousands of canaries from Germany, as well as other valuable birds. After I had my own quarters I always had a canary to cheer up my room and, of course, took some birds home. These little fellows are wonderful companions. The Hartz Mountain canary is particularly vivacious and chirps away the greater part of the day and will liven up any one's spirits.

One bird that was a prize was a red-headed bull finch that always greeted me vociferously when I returned home from a voyage. The little fellow seemed to sense when I was scheduled to return. Most of the time he flew around the rooms and as soon as I entered would alight on my hand. Then one day I came home and when Mrs. Fried opened the door, I saw tears streaming down her cheeks. The little fellow was in her hand. I watched him making one last desperate effort to chirp. I took him and rubbed his soft feathered back. He gave one shrill whistle and became still forever. It was a sad blow to both of us for we had become so attached to him. On the next voyage I brought another canary home.

"...One of my hobbies has filled our house with lamps..."

Marine paintings naturally have a fascination for me and I have about 25 small ones in my home that I have collected in various parts of the globe. One which I prize very highly is Duparc's impression of the foundering of the British freighter Antinoe, with the President Roosevelt standing by as the crew was being rescued. Others in the collection, several of which are by R. Dumont Duparc, official marine painter for the French government, depict the rigs of assorted sailing vessels and are unusually interesting because they show the changes of rigging in these ships down through marine history.

I have never considered reading a hobby inasmuch as it is more or less in my daily routine of activities aboard ship and while I am in port. Historical sketches, autobiographies and good modern fiction are appealing to me and I have such volumes in home and cabin. But because of the stress of shipboard duties I have considerably less time to read at sea than I have at home.

Using Jones Law To Boost Prices

Prohibition Enforcement Officials Discredit Stories That Bootleggers Are Abandoning Business Through Fear—Offer Explanation of Such Stories.

Washington, March 14 (AP).—Many reports have reached the ears of prohibition enforcement officials that bootleggers were scurrying to cover since the enactment of the Jones bill to increase penalties for dry law violations, but there is no official confirmation of such stories at the Treasury Department.

Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary of the Treasury in charge of prohibition, and Dr. James M. Doran, commission of prohibition, said that no cases brought under the Jones law had reached a determination, and it was impossible to judge the effects of the legislation at this early date. Lowman believed that most of the reports reaching the department concerning bootleggers quitting were untrue.

Since the day the Jones law was signed by President Coolidge reports have come from various sections of the country that bootleggers were abandoning their illicit trade. Invariably these stories have said that the big operators among the violators were taking this action rather than face a penalty of five years in prison and a maximum fine of $10,000. The penalty, however, may be set by the judge hearing a case and may be no more than under the present law, if the court so rules.

Excuse for Boosting Prices.

Coincident with the report that bootleggers were becoming frightened, it was related that the price of liquor was being doubled or tripled because of the added risks involved. These types of reports caused officials to smile, and they expressed the belief that the bootleggers were using a pretext to obtain from their customers a great deal more than the poor quality of liquor sold in this country was worth.

Especially did this apply to the bootlegger who sold liquor by the drink, or pint or quart, for it long has been the policy of the prohibition bureau to devote its attention to the large operators among the violators and to strike at the source of supply rather than to pile up innumerable cases against small peddlers who are only distributing for the big violators.

No Gauge Yet of Effectiveness.

Lowman said that while there had been a few arrests under the Jones law throughout the country, no gauge as to its effectiveness could be set until some of the cases had been tried. He pointed out that under the law it was necessary for a federal grand jury to return indictments against person charged with prohibition law violations and to give them a trial in the federal courts, already 21,000 cases behind on prohibition.

By Junius

Sandy had been courting the fair Jean for two years. One evening after Sandy had been silent for some 20 minutes, Jean murmured:

"A penny for your thoughts, Sandy."

"Weel," replied Sandy, with sudden boldness, "I was thunkin' I'd like tae kiss ye, lassie."

Jean blushed happily as this operation took place, but Sandy fell silent again.

"An' what are ye thinkin' about noo?" asked the girl hopefully. "Anither?"

"Na, lassie; it's mair serious this time. I was just wonderin' when ye were goin' tae pay me that penny for ma thochts."

Small Boy: "Whatcha paintin' mister?"

Artist: "The old house over there."

Small Boy: "Well, it sure needs it."

We are glad to note an announcement from the movies that the sound of the kiss will not be reproduced in the talkies, but will be photographed in silence, as it has been since movies first were made. And as one writer observes, probably nothing will be lost as far as realism is concerned, anyhow. Most kisses that mean anything are the silent kind.

Atta Boy, Johnny!

Teacher: "Johnny, can you define advertising?"

Johnny: "You betcha!—
It's what you say,
And how you say it;
Set in type,
And then display it."

Put a little sugar in a gallon of grape juice, let it alone, and it is bound to violate something or other.

Bank Teller: "This check is all right, but you must be introduced. Can't you bring your husband?"

Woman: "Who, Jack? Why, if Jack thought you wanted an introduction to me he'd knock your block off."

'Tis better to have loved and lost than to have married before finding her out.

The mate had fallen overboard and was struggling in the water.

"Ahoy there!" he yelled. Drop me a line."

The captain appeared at the rail and shouted back:

"All right—what's your address going to be?"

After quietly observing some of these beautiful young flappers we wonder where on earth is the man who can make them happy for life.

Stop listening to idle rumors and give your ears a vacation.

"Nurse," said an amorous patient, "I'm in love with you. I don't want to get well."

"Cheer up, you won't," she assured him. "The doctor's in love with me, too, and he saw you kiss me this morning."

A man's idea of comfort is a home atmosphere in a hotel and hotel service at home.

Kingston Sunday School teacher was talking to her class about kindness to animals. "Now," she said, "if you saw a bad boy cutting off a cat's tail, what would you read to him from the Bible to convince him that he was doing wrong? One of the boys called out, "I would tell him 'What God hath joined together let no man cut asunder'."

Question—"Give the names of your parents."

Applicant—"Mama and Papa."

The night was made for sleep and the day for the insomniac to lie about how little he slept.

ELEANOR GUNN ON FASHIONS

TWIN PRINTS FORM EFFECTIVE ALLIANCE AND WOOLENS FOLLOW THEIR LEAD

New York—The status of the printed gown remains unchanged. Every well balanced wardrobe will most certainly contain its quota. The Paris openings definitely placed the printed gown in the front ranks for evening, and relegated it to second place for day wear the possible exception to this statement being that the newest entree, the late afternoon dress is frequently printed. The line of demarkation between dinner, and late afternoon dresses is very slight, the ideas heretofore restricted to evening being freely borrowed for the new recruit.

The use of lace as a trimming detail of the printed dress is more general than heretofore. The use of plain material as a trimming for a printed dress rather than the other way about, as was usually the case, may also be said to register this spring. While prints are nothing if not varied, the feeling for tonal effects rather than for strong contrasts and for small rather than large designs is general.

There seems to be rather a natural affinity for printed silks and the 1880 silhouette. Prints used for such frocks are naive in character and are easily reconciled to the ruffled and frilled treatments peculiar to that day and age. The interesting use of twin prints, on contrasting fabrics and often in reverse color arrangement, is another note worthy of a season which seems happily concerned in working out effective variations of tried out themes. Not only are twin prints used together, but woolen designs in heavy and light weight have been found to form effective alliances. Tweed designs are copied in materials of quite a different character.

IDEAS FOR THE DYE-WISE

PRIZE LETTER FROM MIAMI, FLA.

Dyed 10 Garments—Spent 65 Cents

"I decided to try Sunset Dyes and Dytints. Having a faded blue crepe kimono, began on that with Bright Blue Sunset. It came out beautiful, bright, clear blue.

"With a camel's hair paint brush I renewed the blue flowers on my sun hat. I purchased one cake of Bright Blue Sunset, one cake of Heliotrope Sunset, one package Peach Dytint, one Blue Dytint for silk only. A discolored white Crepe Romaine dress was dipped into Peach Dytint. A rich peach color was obtained. Then a wash satin night gown and a pair of scanties went into the same bath and a beautiful color resulted.

"I tinted a white crepe de chine trimmed with white lace using Blue Dytint for silk only. The result was lovely. I put in a dotted swiss dress, faded blue dots on white; this weak bath just brought back their original blue. I dyed my faded blue georgette, using Blue Sunset with Heliotrope. This dress looks better than when new. I boiled a faded Swiss dress in soap solution to extract the original colors and tied knots in it. I dyed it with Bright Blue Sunset. The blue with white is very effective. I dyed a figured Crepe de Chine Heliotrope with a Blue cast.

"For sixty-five cents I have dyed one kimono, one night gown, one pair of scanties, six dresses, one hat."—Katherine G. [illegible], Miami, Fla.

For fast dyeing use Sunset Soap Dye—15 cents a cake. For beautiful tinting use Dytint, wonderful new tint, in big box, 15c.

'Jimmie' McAuliff In Art Show

(By F. G. Clough)

"Jimmie," or James McAuliff, of West Hurley, many years driver of the S. B. Longyear busses which ply from Kingston to Woodstock and other points, has been lifted from his lowly position this week and taken down to the heart of New York city and established in the very center of the roof-garden of the famous Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

"Jimmie" may not know this yet. Or maybe someone has told him where he is. The person responsible for his sudden notoriety is an artist from Woodstock who painted a canvas of the Woodstock village square and included one of the busses and the driver, "Jimmie," who leans forward in his characteristic way to extract some change from his trousers pocket. The chief note in this modern canvas, to one who knows Woodstock and "Jimmie," is the long, lean, polite figure of the bus driver whose services have made him a public character. On a plane heroic, and parallel with the U. S. mail service, Jimmie's rounds are never stayed by rain, snow, sleet or hail, but always he assists those who travel to and from Woodstock; to other bus drivers and to many residents of Kingston his personality is familiar.

This painting is by Earle B. Winslow, and hangs this week at the Thirteenth Annual Exhibition of The Society of Independent Artists, Inc., at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York.

There are other local and semi-local artists and paintings hanging in this large show just opened for the remainder of March. "The Ashokan Reservoir," is the subject of a piece by Reeves Brace. Jo Cantine, popular Woodstock artist, whose work has been shown at the Woodstock gallery and is known to Kingstonians, has two "paintings" in this exhibition. E. Tudlie, also well known at Woodstock, has two excellent paintings, one "Woodstock," the other of "Shady." Rudolph Tandler has a water color of "Mills, Woodstock."

Outstanding to the reviewer, that is ranking with the very best of the work shown in this immense exhibition, are the two paintings by Warren Wheelock, sculptor and painter. Mr. Wheelock left Woodstock a couple of seasons back, and this exhibit of his work certainly shows amazing changes; he deserves considerable recognition for his "Winter Landscape" shown with the Independents. Other local artists are Oscar F. Luders and Kenneth Bates, who have pieces here.

For those interested in this exhibition aside from the local inclusions, it might be said that leading names represented include Walter Pach, Robert Henri, John Sloan, E. E. Cummings, Pop Hart, Victor Higgins, William Zorach, Richard Lahey and Stan. The show is a large one. There are many mediocre paintings included. The main significance to the writer is the "no jury, no prizes" policy of the society, which allows a variety of work. The tendency of the Independents seems away from the ultra-modern and freakish art and toward a sincerity of motives. It is surprising that so much conservative and academic influence should show itself in this show; this should please the public.

Edith Penman died recently in New York city; she was well known at Byrdcliffe, where she conducted classes in pottery for a number of years.

Best Cod Livers Are Worst, Science Finds

New York.—Cod livers that contain the most oil do not have the best, from the standpoint of preventing rickets, Dr. Alfred F. Hess, Dr. Charles E. Bills and Edna M. Honeywell have found by recent experiments. The antirachitic potency of cod-liver oil is determined by a feeding experiment on young rats. In this way cod-liver oil for the market is assayed. Using the same method, these investigators found that oil from "poor" livers was 200 times more potent than high-grade oil.

"Contrary to current opinion, antirachitic potency varies inversely with the amount of oil in the liver," the investigators reported to the Journal of the American Medical association. They found that rich livers had oil which was very much less effective in checking rickets. The more potent oil found in poor livers has a very dark color and can only be obtained in minute amounts. Oils from individual fish may vary as much as 1,000 times in their antirachitic value, it was found.

The Yukon territory was set up as such in 1898 by an act of the Canadian parliament and provision made for its local government by a legislative council composed of a commissioner and six others. This territory has an area of about 207,000 square miles. The Yukon river is navigable for 2,000 miles in the United States and Canadian territory and the territory itself is not only rich in metals but has much arable land.

A wizards boast... A poets dream.

A WORLD of forbidding distances, rimmed by the unknown. Night using its darkness to reveal countless worlds in the far spaces of the sky. Hand uplifted, the Soothsayer summons the universe to speak its secrets.

Another prophet, the Poet. Seer by inspiration rather than incantation, he sings the World That Is To Be—human hopes ripening to realization, mankind mounting on mysteries revealed to genius and energy.

Boast and dream, both have come true. At the command of Man the Conqueror, distance fades. His voice spans community, county and continent—even an ocean—easily, instantly. At his home, in his office or shop, a world waits on his word.

Serving the voices of millions day and night, this Company sees romance as well as duty in its task. Romance in making personal communication independent of distance. Duty in providing adequate, ever-improving facilities for this vital service, and anticipating requirements which daily grow more enormous.

Exide

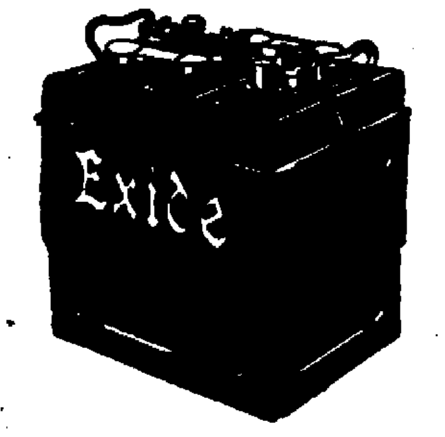
The long-life battery

There are two things which make the Exide such a popular battery. In the first place it is reasonably priced—so reasonably, that every car owner can afford one.

Secondly, it is so absolutely dependable that you soon regard your starting and lighting power as a sort of permanent supply.

Made by The Electric Storage Battery Company, a company with 41 years experience in building batteries for every purpose, it is only natural that an Exide should give long and reliable service.

You certainly owe yourself the security and satisfaction of an Exide. Drive in when the time comes to replace your present battery and let us quote you a price on the proper sized Exide for your car.



In 1911 when the first electrical starting and lighting equipment was installed on a motor car, the battery selected was an Exide. The dependable qualities that made it the pioneer battery still make it the choice of millions of car owners.

This blue and white sign means Exide service. Drive in or phone us when you need the [illegible]. Service on all makes.

Jewish Farmers Making Good

Jews Farm 1,000,000 Acres in the U. S.—The Jewish Agricultural Society Reports Steady Growth.

Gabriel Davidson, general manager of the Jewish Agricultural Society, has just issued the society's twenty-ninth annual report. The report shows that Jewish farmers in the United States are making steady progress and gives a comprehensive statement of the work and accomplishments of the various departments and branch offices through which the society operates.

The society's farm loan department has since 1900 granted a total of 9,357 loans aggregating $6,904,611. Loans have been made to farmers located in 40 states. Last year loans were made to 454 individual farmers located in 16 states, and 1,954 persons were directly benefited. The financial service extended by the society is based on business principles, though loans are made on marginal securities and their repayment is spread over a long period of years. There is no exaction of bonus or commission or payment of renewal charges. This department has aided many farmers to obtain firmer foothold and has also helped numerous persons to take up agricultural pursuits.

The farm employment department has secured employment for 16,371 Jewish young men since 1908. Last year it placed 390 men as farm workers. This department affords young Jews the opportunity of acquiring practical agricultural training. Records show that many bought farms of their own after a period of service.

During the past eleven years—the post war period—11,384 Jewish men and women desiring to buy farms applied to the farm settlement department for advice and guidance. Farms were found for 1,027 families of whom 486 received loans to help finance their purchase. This department is responsible for the establishment of the Toms River-Lakowood (New Jersey) Settlement, one of the most important poultry centers in the east. It helped place there more than one hundred Jewish families, who developed into successful farmers. Recently new Jewish farming centers were established in Farmingdale and in Bound Brook, New Jersey. In the Bound Brook settlement, which is within the metropolitan commuting zone, 44 families bought farms. The settlement is the result of the strong demand for farms near the city because of the opportunity it offers of engaging in farm work without entirely discontinuing the city job—a continuation of which is important in the early stage of the new farmer. This is a trend in which the society sees much promise.

Through the Farm Settlement Department the Society is also carrying on fraud prevention work and is waging war against dishonest farm agents.

The agricultural experts of the Society's Extension Department visited 2,393 Jewish farmers during 1928 and held 138 meetings, demonstrations, field days and extension schools. Through this system of itinerant instruction, the farmers received up-to-date and scientific information in the various branches of farming. In addition, advice and aid were given to 1,881 farmers who sought individual consultation at the Society's central office. This Department also gave scholarhsips to the sons and daughters of Jewish farmer at the agricultural colleges in five states. The Department also maintains a Purchasing Service Bureau, which saves the farmers considerable sums in the purchase of supplies and material. The Agricultural Night School conducted by this Department is the only one of its kind. The school's attendance has more than doubled since it was opened four years ago, and its enrollment for the 1928 session numbered 185. The Extension Department also publishes "The Jewish Farmer," the pioneer Yiddish agricultural magazine in the world.

For the first time in its history the Society awarded a series of prizes to farmers for outstanding achievement in the various fields of agriculture and to the farm boys, girls and women who made the greatest contributions to the family farmsteads. Fifty-four prizes in all were given and the winners hailed from widely scattered states.

In 1928 the Society's Sanitation Department made 868 farm visits in the Jewish farming districts of New York, Connecticut and New Jersey. It has promoted high standards of rural sanitation—safeguarding farm water sources, teaching sanitary disposal methods and protecting food supplies.

The Society also made loans for the erection of synagogues and community houses, and has promoted and supported rural religious education. The Society cooperates with the National Council of Jewish Women and with the United States Synagogue of America in advancing the social and religious phases of rural life.

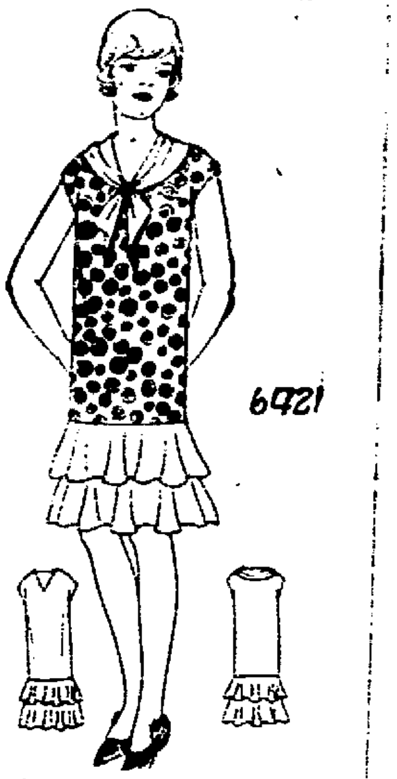
Concerning the Jewish farm population, Mr. Davidson cites the figures of Dr. H. S. Linfield as given in his study of the Jewish population in the United States, "that 109,600 Jews live in rural territory." The Society estimates that 1,000,000 acres are today being farmed by Jews and the real estate and personal property value of their holdings is over $175,000,000.

Of special interest to the residents of Ulster-Sullivan and adjoining counties is the work of the Branch Office at Ellenville, New York, completing its tenth year of activity and under which jurisdiction is the largest number of Jewish farmers in the United States.

Herman J. Levine, the Branch Manager, reports that during the past year over 300 applications were acted upon for loans and farm settlements, 285 miscellaneous farm visits were made and 69 loans granted aggregating $46,246. The sanitation work in charge of Dr. Goodwin shows marked improvement while the extension work under Jules Cherniak indicates a decided trend toward more and diversified farming, along the most modern methods of agriculture. The miscellaneous services rendered by this office cover nearly every phase of human endeavor which affects the weal and welfare of the farm family.

The officers of the Society are Percy S. Straus, president; Lewis L. Strauss, vice president; Reuben Arkes, secretary; Francis F. Rosenbaum, treasurer. The Society's main office is in New York city and it has branches in Chicago, Philadelphia and in Ellenville, N. Y.; agencies in Cleveland and Detroit and correspondents elsewhere.

OUR DAILY PATTERN



A Dainty Frock For Dance or Party.

6421. As pictured printed chiffon and plain chiffon are combined. One could use taffeta combined. Plain and printed voile is also suggested as a pleasing combination. Circular flounces are joined to straight line body portions in this pretty model, and the neck edge is finished with a kerchief collar, arranged in soft folds and tied in a knot at the centre front. The shoulders are lengthened to form a short cap sleeve.

The pattern for this design is cut in 4 sizes: 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. To make the dress as illustrated in the large view will require 2 yards of figured and 2¼ yards of plain material. If made as in the small view 3¾ yards will be required. Without the collar ⅝ yard less is required.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Fashion Book Notice.

Send 15c in coin or stamps to The Freeman for our up-to-date Spring and Summer 1929 Book of Fashions showing color plates, and containing 500 designs of ladies', misses' and children's patterns, a concise and comprehensive article on dressmaking, also some points for the needle (illustrating 30 of the various simple stitches), all valuable hints to the home dressmaker.

Early Toast

Wassail, a liquor consisting of ale with roasted apples, sugar, nutmeg and toast, received its name from the Anglo-Saxon phrase meaning "May you be in health," which was used in drinking a toast in the liquor.

Taft Tells Walden Girl He Erred

Walden, N. Y., March 14 (AP).—Chief Justice Taft has confessed error in a letter to Helen Terwilliger, 13, who on the radio heard him administer the oath of office to Mr. Hoover. The words prescribed by the constitution are "preserve, maintain and protect," and added: "You may attribute the variation to the defect of an old man's memory." In view of the radio, the incident, he thinks, "shows how much more carefully one who is exercising a public duty must now conduct himself."

A. membership meeting to be held on Sunday afternoon, March 17, at the Fair Street Reformed Church at 4:30 o'clock, when the speaker will be the Rev. Dr. J. V. Moldenhawer, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, New York city, successor of the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick. Every member of the Y. W. C. A. is urged to be present at this meeting.

Following Wednesday night's supper, Miss Ellen Van Slyke gave a talk both very informing and interesting upon "Japan", after which Mrs. Lewis conducted the health culture class.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Plaintiff Will Close Case Today and Defendant Will Present Testimony —Mrs. Connor Tells of Ride In Which Her Husband Was Killed.

The action brought by Mrs. Florence S. Connor against Ralph M. Thompson was continued at the opening of Supreme court this morning. Harold Davis of Krumville was called. He was at Winchell's store. The Studebaker in which Mr. Connor was riding at the time of the accident which caused his death was at the intersection of the Brown Station road when he first saw it. It was about 6 feet off the macadam and the gravel along the road flew against his car and on the Winchell store porch. He saw no other car and estimated the speed of the Studebaker to be 40 or 45 miles an hour. Details of the accident were recorded practically as the other witnesses had related.

Grant Bell of Milbrook, who was on the Smith porch, testified he saw the Studebaker about 150 feet west of the intersection of the roads. It was to the right of the road and as it crossed the intersection of the roads it gained speed. There were two other cars on the road which he saw. One had arrived at the intersection about the time the Studebaker did and the other car was the Dutcher Chevrolet which was struck by the Studebaker of the defendant. Both cars were going toward Phoenicia and the Studebaker was traveling in an opposite direction. All of the cars were to the right of the road. Mr. Ball, who is an automobile mechanic, said the Studebaker was traveling about 30 miles an hour and then gained speed at the intersection. After the car had struck the tree he went over and shut off the motor which was running. The foot throttle was wide open to the floor board. The car which arrived at the intersection at the same time as the Studebaker, did not turn toward the Brown Station road.

Mrs. Connor, who sues as executrix of her husband's estate, was called. She testified she was 49 years old and Mr. Connor at the time of his death was 53. She testified to being invited to the Thompson home at Pine Hill. It was her first trip. Sunday at 5 o'clock they started to return to Kingston to travel home by train. Jane Thompson drove. The car was a Studebaker with a victoria top.

She could recall nothing definite of the accident except that the car suddenly jerked forward and ran to the right and then to the left of the road and then back to the right and when about in the center of the road tipped over. She recalled being rolled about in the car and next she knew she was walking on the road. She did not recall how or when she left the car. Her husband was lying on the roadway. The car was against a tree. She testified as to the three daughters and of the support which Mr. Connor gave his family. It was his custom to give her $100 a week to operate the house and clothe herself and the three girls. In addition he paid the servants, two in number and also paid clothing bills amounting to several hundred dollars in addition to the $5,200 a year which he gave his wife. The youngest daughter who is 12 years old is suffering from the effects of infantile paralysis and required medical attention. Mrs. Connor also testified that she was deaf and required medical attention. Testimony was also given in regard to the home life of the family and as to Mr. Connor's industry and good habits.

The plaintiff will close his case early today and the defendant will present testimony. Whether the case will be concluded today depends on the testimony to be given by the defendant.

No additions were made to the day calendar.

GOITRE NOT A DISEASE

Milwaukee Doctor Makes Remarkable Discovery.

Milwaukee, Wis.—It has been brought to light by scientific research that goitre is not a disease and is not to be treated as such. Dr. A. A. Rock, Dept. E38, Box 737, Milwaukee, Wis., a prominent goitre specialist for over 24 years, has perfected a different method of treatment for his patients that has proved remarkably successful. This same mehtod is now being used for a home treatment of goitre cases all over the country with astonishing results. The Doctor states that goitre is a condition which grows worse with neglect and recommends immediate attention no matter how small the growth may appear. He strongly opposes needless operations. Dr. Rock is the author of a book that tells in a simple way about treating goitre at home. He has published this book at his own expense and will send a copy free to anyone interested. Big Program Next Week for Women

Mrs. Evelyn Tobey of Columbia University in County Wide Meeting—Home Furnishings at Stone Ridge—Home Crafts Work Launched.

The women of Ulster county are to have an unusually full program next week. After much anxiety concerning a date for Mrs. Evelyn Tobey, she has at last given Ulster county, March 23. The meeting will be held in the courthouse in Kingston, beginning at 10:30.

Mrs. Tobey, who is head of the millinery department of Teachers' College, Columbia University, always attracts large groups of women. Largely because of her charming personality and because of the fund of information she has to give. She has returned from Palm Beach and Havana from which she brings the latest ideas in spring styles worn by the very elite at these resorts.

This year the entire morning session will be given over to hair dressing. The latest and most becoming coiffures, as adapted to the different individuals in the group will be demonstrated women from the county being used as models.

In the afternoon session foundation garments will be demonstrated, using the women of the county as models. Mrs. Tobey will then give her famous style talk, which the women of the county are anxious to hear before they invest in their new spring wardrobes. She brings from New York city an abundance of illustrative material for her demonstration.

Home Furnishings Lessons Begun.

On Wednesday, March 20, Mrs. Alma Scidmore, housing specialist, from the State College of Home Economics, will be present at the Stone Ridge Grange Hall to give the first lesson in the course in Home Furnishings. The meeting will begin at 11 o'clock, as it will be necessary to get in an hour or more of the discussion in the forenoon. All ladies in the county interested in taking this course are invited to attend. All are to bring lunch. The members of the Stone Ridge unit are expecting to serve hot coffee to the group.

Mrs. Scidmore brings a wealth of illustrative material to carry out the ideas she wishes to convey to the women of the country regarding wall finishes, window hangings, etc. This course promises to be a real treat to all those who can avail themselves of the opportunity to attend.

Mrs. Robert Service, of Stone Ridge and Mrs. H. M. Eppes, of Accord, have most graciously given over their homes for demonstration purposes. On Thursday morning the women of the Stone Ridge community will meet with Mrs. Scidmore at the home of Mrs. Service, where a practical demonstration in furnishing will be begun. In the afternoon, beginning at 2 p. m., the ladies of Accord will meet with Mrs. Eppes for the same purpose. This work promises to be one of the most valuable projects ever brought to the county.

Home Crafts Begun

While Mrs. Scidmore is in the county she will meet with county leaders and local leaders from all communities taking the course in hooked rugs and woven articles. This meeting will be held Friday, March 22, in the offices of the Ulster County Home Bureau, 280 Wall street, beginning at 10:30. Mrs. Scidmore will teach the first three lessons in the course which cover design, color and dyeing. County leaders will repeat the lessons in the communities taking home crafts. Local leaders will take care of local organization.

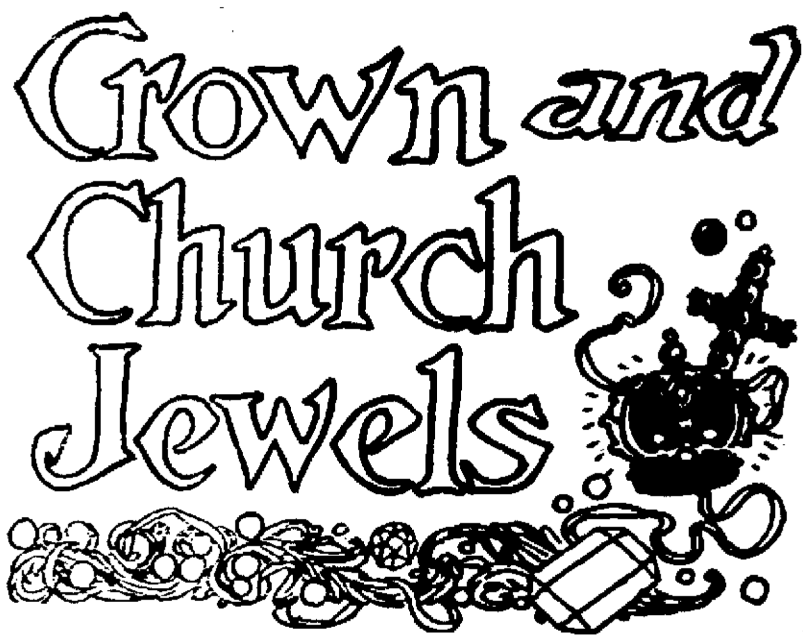
Crown and Church Jewels



(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

RUMOR from time to time that the new Turkish regime is planning to sell the jewels amassed by the sultans, and that the Soviet government wishes to dispose of gems of the tsars and the Russian church turns attention to these and the other great collections of precious stones and treasure.

The Turkish crown jewels, for many years hidden in the Green Vaults of Constantinople, are among the world's largest collections. The Sultan's throne is of massive beaten gold, studded with diamonds, rubies and emeralds set in mosaic. It has been appraised at more than $15,000,000.

Few travelers have ever broken through the seclusion of the treasure room to see the jewels and only lately have photographers been permitted to take pictures of the collection. There is another throne of ebony and sandalwood, inlaid with mother-of-pearl, rubies, emeralds and sapphires; a toilet set thickly studded with turquoises and diamonds; and armor, pistols, saddles, sandals, simitars, turbans, daggers, swords and canes all bejeweled, not to mention the long strands of pearls as large as cherries, rings, bracelets, anklets, and all sorts of other gorgeously designed jewelry for various uses.

Some authorities claim the Russian horde of jewels is the world's largest. The head of the tsar must have gleamed mightily at royal functions, with 32,800 carats of diamonds and rows of pearls, when he wore his best headdress. There are other regal crowns of magnificent filigree work, artistically set with colored stones above a base of expensive fur.

The famous Shah diamond which formerly hung in front of the Peacock throne when it was in possession of one of the mogul emperors of India, is in the collection; and scattered here and there among the gorgeous array are diamonds as big as walnuts, rubies and emeralds as large as pigeon eggs, inlaid golden plates, bejeweled wall hangings, robes, swords, scepters, pendants, canes, staffs, religious emblems, tapestries, and what-nots. The famous Orloff diamond reposes in the handle of Catharine the Great's scepter.

Jewels in Tower of London.

The brightest spot within the grim gray walls of the Tower of London, if not in London itself, is the jewel room where the crown jewels of Great Britain are on exhibition. To reach the large glass case which incloses the gems, one has to run the gantlet of guards from the lowly but dignified "beefeaters" (yoemen of the guard) to some of the picked guards of the empire. And should a visitor attempt to take one of the gems he likes most, he would find that an unseen steel safe would immediately encase the treasures, the door behind him would become fast, and the outer gates of the tower walls would clang shut to avert his escape. Appraisers admit that $30,000,000 is a low estimate of the value of the royal jewelry.

One of the most striking pieces is Queen Mary's crown. Lying on a white satin pillow, it scintilates with many jewels including the famous Kohinoor (Mountain of Light) diamond. Some of the smaller diamonds were cut from the Cullinan, the largest diamond ever found. In the rough it weighed 3,034¾ carats. The Kohinoor is believed by the Indians to bring an evil spell upon a masculine owner, hence, it is Queen Mary's stone.

Fortunately the king wears the crown of England but a few minutes during his coronation ceremony. It is a magnificent creation weighing five pounds—somewhat heavy for comfortable headdress. Its golden form is nearly hidden by diamonds, rubies and sapphires. The king's crown, of lighter weight contains the Black Prince ruby and beneath it 700 diamonds cut from the Cullinan stone. The crown of Queen Victoria, also on exhibition, sparkles with 3,000 diamonds, 341 pearls and many sapphires in an arch over a purple velvet form while atop is a mound of 548 diamonds and a cross with four large sapphires and four diamonds.

The princes of India have been collecting jewels for thousands of years and among them are some of the most elaborate displays of gems. It was from India that the famous Peacock throne was taken to Teheran, Persia. Shah Jahan, one of the great Indian Moguls, daily sat on this solid gold four poster seat, dispensing justice. The monarch's back rested against rubies, emeralds and sapphires which adorned the peacock's tail, while overhead was a pearl-fringed canopy. His turban was ablaze with diamonds, his chest hidden by ropes of pearls, and his fingers literally wrapped in gold and precious stones.

Baroda's Carpet of Pearls.

The Carpet of Pearls, in the Nummbagh palace at Baroda, is one of the world famous jeweled creations. It is 8 by 6 feet square. Besides the pearls, which form the larger part of the carpet, there are three large diamonds, 82 small diamonds, 1,200 rubies and 500 emeralds which form a flower design in the center. Imagine an Eastern potentate sitting on the gorgeous Peacock throne with his shoulders nearly stooped under the weight of pearls, his legs and arms arrayed in golden jeweled bracelets and anklets, his head crowned with more stones than some jewelers handle in many years, and with a Carpet of Pearls hanging before him.

The gaekwar of Baroda is said to have the largest collection of pearls and the maharajah of Indore runs a close second. A royal wedding or state function attended by the Indian princes in their jewels represents many millions of dollars. At one royal wedding the maharajah of Indore wore a scarf of pearls valued at $3,500,000. Eighteen of the pearls were set with carat diamonds. This potentate also has one of the most bejeweled turbans in India which is a mass of rubies, emeralds and diamonds.

No less imposing are some of the religious collections of jewels. Since the dawn of history people have been lavish with their gifts for religious purposes, whether they worshiped idols or an unseen God. The result is that in all ages treasure, usually in the form of gold and silver and precious stones, has flowed to temples and churches, monasteries and other religious institutions. Archeologists find that the pagan temples of civilizations' dead for thousands of years were ornamented with a wealth of precious metals. Indian temples of several faiths have had their rich treasures and their ornaments of gold and silver for centuries; and they have made use as well of a glittering array of diamonds, rubies, sapphires and other jewels. Many an idol today, from the dim interiors of Indian temples, looks out through eyes of great lustrous, precious stones, and wears other gems that might ransom an emperor.

Treasures of Christian Churches.

The marked enrichment of Christian churches began in earnest in Italy and the East in the Fifth and Sixth centuries and spread in early medieval times to France and other Western countries. Not only did the churches accumulate gold chalices, patens, candelabra and other small objects, but many had large screens of gold and silver, as well as fonts and statues. To a few of the churches altars of solid gold were presented, but later church regulations prescribed stone and wood as the only permissible materials for altars. Precious stones also came into use to ornament images of the saints or as gifts to them. Thus the Sacred Baby of the Church of Ara Coeli in Rome has been given over a space of many years a wealth of jewels.

The accumulation of treasure by temples and churches and monasteries has not been unbroken. Time and time again these convenient stores of precious metals and precious stones have been seized by conquerors. Pagans have looted the shrines of other pagans. Mohammedans looted Roman churches, including St. Peter's in 846, and the churches of Constantinople in 1453. Sancta Sophia, after the break between the Western and Eastern churches, was sacked by Western Christians during the Fourth Crusade; and church vessels were taken or destroyed in many cases at the time of the Reformation.

Russian church treasuries have been among the richest in existence in late centuries. When Russ envoys were sent out by the then semi-civilized state in 987 to choose a national religion, they were most impressed by the wealth and rich beauty of the services at Sancta Sophia. Since that time Russian churches have been marked by their wealth of ornamentation. Screens, reliquaries and canopies of precious metals were to be found in all of the well-to-do churches.

Probably the wealthiest of all religious institutions in Russia was the Lavra or super-monastery at Kiev. Before the World war it had an annual income of half a million dollars and a well-stocked treasury. The second most important institution, the Lavra of St. Sergius, near Moscow, had treasure with a present value of about $825,000,000. At the Cathedral of St. Isaacs, St. Petersburg, there was more than a ton of silver in the form of ecclesiastical vessels, and in addition much gold.

Motor Fails, Plane Crashes, 1 Killed

Baltimore, March 14 (AP).—Lieutenant Jack W. Albright of Philadelphia was killed and Lieutenant W. D. Ilgenfritz of Upper Darby, Pa., was injured last night as a plane piloted by Albright crashed in making a forced landing near Bel Air, Md.

They were flying a plane reported to belong to the Pennsylvania National Guard air units, and were returning to Philadelphia after flying during the day to visit Maryland guard aviators at Logan Field here.

Caught in fog and rain they sought a landing place as the motor began to fail, and according to Lieut. Ilgenfritz the plane was banking in a sharp turn about 400 feet up when the motor went dead Victor H. Bowers, living near the scene, heard the plane circling before the crash and found it nose down in a field, with wheels caught around a tree and the motor driven back into the fuselage, where it had caught Lieutenant Albright and crushed him in the front cockpit.

Lieutenant Ilgenfritz in the rear cockpit had two fractured ribs and cuts and bruises.

Conference on Highway Matters

The annual conference of the state officials with the town superintendents of highway, supervisors and town officials of the various towns of the county was held Wednesday at the court house. At that time state officials conferred with the town officials on highway matters and answered questions and gave instructions as to town highway matters.

WEST SHOKAN

West Shokan, March 14—The fine weather all are enjoying and the appearance of robins and blue birds indicates that spring is not far in the offing. This of course seems to please all as the following verse indicates:

Will the winter never be o'er?
Shall the cold days never go?
Must the buttercups, and the clover
Be always hid under the snow!

Forty-one years ago the great blizzard was raging, piling up mountainous snow drifts which completely demoralized all forms of traffic. All trust that this generation will never experience a storm of this magnitude, which is so indelibly written in the memory of the older inhabitants.

The members of the Ladies' Aid armed with the implements of their profession, turned out enmasse to the quilting held at Mrs. Erastus North's on Wednesday.

Miss Ernestine and Irving Hesley have returned home from Kingston Hospital where on Monday they submitted to the removal of both tonsils and adenoids. Doctor Johnston, assisted by Dr. Pace of Phoenicia, were the surgeons.

Mrs. Orville Barber, who returned from the hospital on Sunday, is convalescing slowly, although she still remains in a weakened condition.

Martin J. Every of Traver Hollow after being detained at home for some time with his season's firewood gathering, was on Tuesday a general community caller.

Judge F. L. Weidner reported a heavy flow of sap which is keeping his sapping crew and evaporating plant operating at full capacity. Other syrup producers of the community are now making a concerted effort to get their trees producing.

Mrs. Arthur Snyder and Mrs. Arthur Condon were recent callers at the home of Mrs. Watson Bishop.

The many friends of John Henricksen, Jr., were indeed pleased to see him among the number of week end visitors.

Charles McRoberts and daughter, Harriet, of Kingston, were among visitors at Tuckaway Farm.

Among the locals entertained on Monday evening at the Traver Hollow Inn were: Mr. and Mrs. Shepard Bell, of the West Shokan Inn, Professor and Mrs. Arthur Condon, Mrs. Watson Bishop, Mrs. Chase Davis, Robert L. Bishop and Elwyn Davis.

Mrs. Jane Ann Burgher is a Kingston visitor.

The flock of egg producers at the Traver Hollow Inn poultry farm are supplying eggs in abundance. The surplus above the filling of the requirements of city customers are being disposed of at the well known Colange store on Main street.

Mrs. Gilbert North of Olive Bridge, who has this winter been very seriously ill, has recovered and was on Wednesday a guest at the Condon residence.

The town of Olive was well represented among the attendants at Kingston Lodge, No. 10, on Tuesday evening. Due to the balmy weather prevailing the attendance was high from the outlying districts covering a territory of many miles.

All hope that Michael Dwyer, whose health is not of the best, will soon be able to be around.

Old timers recollect the famous turkey shoots which 65 years ago took place on the farm now owned by Filmore Bell. The price for which the riflemen contended were live turkeys placed against the bank across the dry brook. The shooting was done from about the spot now occupied by Erastus North's store, the firing range being in the neighborhood of 800 yards, which required the utmost coolness of nerve of the marksman and accuracy of the long barreled muzzle loading rifle to score at hit at this distance. Kirt North and Al Stratton are said to have been among the best shots of the contestants. It is said that the accuracy of one rifleman was so deadly that on one occasion the string holding the turkey was cut with his rifle bullet.

Among the cherished possessions of Mrs. Shepard Bell is a portrait of her uncle, Willie Markle, in his uniform of a sergeant in the Union Army during the Civil War. Though but a youth of 15 he enlisted in September, 1862 in Company A, 120th Regiment, was promoted to sergeant, and on the 8th of the following January succumbed to an attack of typhoid fever at Falmouth, Virginia. On being informed of his death a relative, Parr Harlow, went south for the purpose of bringing home the body, but was unable to get through the lines. Thomas Markle, Mrs. Bell's father, said that he would go and get Willie's body or they would likely bury him, whereupon he made his way to the scene of his brother's death. He located the body enclosed in a casket box and buried in a shallow trench which he excavated and found the rough casket filled with mud and water. With his handkerchief he endeavored to wash the mud from the face of the dead soldier, but the skin rubbed loose. The body was transferred to a metal box and shipped home. Mr. Markle also located the body of Private George Roosa, also a member of Company A, 120th Regiment, who had died of fever. It was likewise recovered and brought back home with that of Willie Markle. Mrs. Bell states that she distinctly remembers the funeral of her uncle being held at the Reformed Church in Shokan. George Roosa is the father of Mrs. Alvena Honson who now resides at Olive Bridge.

Mrs. Arthur Snyder was on Wednesday a business caller in Shokan.

Messrs. Davis and Hasley expect soon to commence sawing the winter's accumulation of logs at the saw mill.

Donald Bishop of Mt. Hermon School writes that he is keeping fit by strenuous swimming practice, and hopes before the close of the term to hold the water championship of the school.

Winkler Brothers with their team are assisting Charles Dwyer in his firewood gathering.

Julian Eckert is being employed as a sculptors model at the Schlonz studios at Boiceville, the impersonation being that of "The Father of our Country."

Abram and Ernest Constable entertained company over the week end.

PLATTEKILL.

Plattekill, March 14.—Saturday evening, March 9, members of Plattekill Grange were entertained by a novel performance during the lecturer's hour, consisting of a mock trial. Those in charge of the affair were Seth Lippincott, Ira Thompson, Peter Wilkins, George Sherwood and William Mack.

Emory Robison had the misfortune to sever the fingers of his right hand while operating a buzz saw last week.

James B. Palmer was a recent visitor at Washington, D. C., where he attended the Inauguration ceremonies and also visited friends.

Vernard B. Wager has a Chevrolet coupe, bought of the Broadway Garage at Newburgh, N. Y.

Mrs. Edward Neuwirth and Mrs. Thomas Kaiser were callers in this place Sunday.

Mrs. Willet Deyo entertained the members of the W. C. T. U. at her home Saturday afternoon of the past week.

Red Sox Have More Than Two Score Men in Camp

Bradenton, Fla., March 14 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox, last in the American League but trying to do better, have blasted one baseball superstition—that the rich become richer and the poor get poorer. The Red Sox have more players in camp than any club in Florida.

Manager Bill Carrigan during the course of two daily workouts looks at more than two score earnest, perspiring athletes in Boston uniforms. If half of them are major league players the manager will be very happy.

The Red Legs are well in the first division in size. More than half the members of the big squad will measure five feet, 11 inches or more. Billy Bayne, who has been a wanderer upon the face of the baseball earth, looks like the batboy in this company of giants, although he is five, nine, and scales 160 pounds.

What the new edition of the Red Sox will be able to achieve in a baseball way, remains to be seen but the fact that most of the players are strangers in Boston may be helpful. They have not become steeped in losing ways.

President Bob Quinn or Manager Carrigan, or both, must have aroused a touch of jealousy in the ranks of the horse trading fraternity when they sent Buddy Myer to play third base for Washington and took five players in exchange.

Bob Reeves, one of the quintet, seems certain to become regular third baseman for the Sox. Grant Gillis, a shortstop, while he may not be able to displace the veteran Wally Gerber altogether, probably will share the assignment with the former Brown, and Elliott Bigelow, who can hit, has only to demonstrate an ability to throw to get an outfield assignment.

The two pitchers in the transaction, Milton Gaston and Horace Lisenbee, have not had sufficient opportunity to qualify but both have shown indications of returning to form, which was lost last season.

Bill Carrigan is giving every candidate plenty of chances to work. He brings half the squad out in the morning and the other half in the afternoon and sends them through extended fielding and hitting practice. There is a fight for every position with no election indicated until all the returns are in.

At first base Phil Todt, an able performer, will again serve but Jerry Standaert, from Memphis, has shown something. Bill Regan should have an advantage at second but another Bill, Narisky from Mobile has done well. A pair of Bobs, Reeves and Barrett, another former major leaguer are battling and in addition to Gerber and Gillis at short, Hal Rhyne, who seems a much better player than when he was with Pittsburgh, is showing as much ambition as any man in camp.

With eleven outfielders roaming all over the place for fly balls and grabbing a bat as soon as one is dropped by a hitter, the problem of getting five or six permanent fixtures promises to be vexing. Ira Flagstead, safe from attack, Jack Rothrock, former infielder and one of the fastest men in the league, Ken Williams, a .300 hitter in any company, and Douglas Taitt, who missed the select .300 class by a hair, are back from the 1928 team. Bigelow who hit nearly .400 in the southern association Russell Scarritt, St. Paul graduate Otto Dumas and George Lopez, tried last spring and farmed to Pittsfield, have been impressive at times.

Charlie Berry, who did well in 1928, leads the race for the first string catching assignment but Alex Gaston, former Giant and once with the same Sox, has shown great spirit in the training period and may remain to make up a brother battery with Milton doing the pitching. A sensational prospect is Robert Asbjornson, not yet 20 years of age, but displaying a convincing ability to hit.

Before it is over, Manager Carrigan may be drawing names of pitchers out of his cap. In addition to Gaston, Lisenbee and Bayne, Big Ed Morris, a great pitcher last year, Dan MacFayden, the bespectacled youth Charlie Ruffing, Jack Russell and Pat Simmons, were exempted from the house cleaning at the close of the 1928 season. There are as many more bidding for places.

Industrial Games Tonight

The Silk Mills and Hercules, now tied for first place in the Industrial League, with 12 wins and two losses chalked in their columns, will play harder than ever tonight when they take on the Schillings and Artistics, respectively, at the Y. M. C. A. A loss for either of the lead teams will throw the other out of the competition for the league honors.

If both teams win tonight, it will bring about a play-off. Should they both drop their games, it would result in the same procedure to pick the league winner, but all indications point to the opposite.

The other tilt, which will make up the brace of Industrial contests at the "Y" tonight, is the battle between the Central Hudson team and the Brighams.

SHERRY MAGEE, COLORFUL FIGURE IN BASEBALL, DIES

Philadelphia, March 14 (AP).—The death of Sherwood Magee, National League umpire and for many years a member of the Philadelphia Nationals, marks the passing of one of baseball's most colorful figures.

Stricken with pneumonia at his home here just a week ago, death occurred last night. He was 44 and is survived by his widow and three children.

Baseball fans of 20 years ago will recall Sherry Magee, then an outfielder with the Phillies, as one of the greatest natural batsmen in the game. He led the National League in batting in 1910, with an average of .331. That season he went to bat 519 times, playing in every game on the schedule.

Magee was a past master in judging fly balls, a fine base runner and full of so-called "inside baseball". The season of 1910 was his biggest batting year, but in 1911 he finished second in batting and in 1914 was third. He led the circuit that year in driving runs across the plate with a total of 101 and also topped the league in extra-base hits.

He dropped out of the majors in 1919, playing later with Columbus, Milwaukee, Minneapolis and Baltimore.

In 1927 Magee umpired in the New York-Pennsylvania League, where his work attracted the attention of President Heydler of the National League and a year ago he was appointed an umpire in that league. He had forwarded his signed contract to Heydler for the present season.

Magee was born in Clarendon, Pa., in 1884 and his first real baseball experience was with Allentown in 1903, where he played with a semi-professional team.

The final games of the Girls' Industrial Basketball League will be played off this week at the Y. W. C. A. court. Fuller's have the lead in the league to date.

The Apollo team was badly handicapped by illness last week, giving their opponents an opportunity to roll up quite a score. They were very good sports however and played the game to the last minute.

Three Contenders In Tournament

New York, March 14 (AP).—The three leading contenders for the heavyweight crown discarded by Gene Tunney have put themselves in the hands of the Madison Square Garden Corporation for the brief elimination tourney President Bill Carey plans for next summer.

Paulino Uzcudun, the Spanish fighter, came into the fold yesterday after much haggling, and signed a contract which gives his exclusive services to the Garden for one year. A second provision in the document gave the Garden the right to stage the Basque's defenses of the heavyweight title for the next three years if he comes out on top of the eliminations.

Two other entries in the summer series, Max Schmeling and Jack Sharkey, already have agreed to put their fistic futures into the hands of the corporation. Schmeling has signed a contract giving his exclusive services to the Garden and although its validity is not certain, it seems probable that he will continue to carry out its provisions when he returns from his homeland.

The contract was signed on condition that the New York Garden free him from a contract signed by his German manager, Arthur Bigelow, whom he is trying to discard, for a fight in Boston. The New York officials were unable to do this, but Max has promised to meet the Boston obligation immediately on his return.

After his triumph over Young Stribling at Miami Beach, Sharkey gave Carey first call on his services this summer at the same figure he received for the battle of the Everglades—$100,000.

The signing of Uzcudun paves a smooth road for the pair of projected elimination battles at the Yankee Stadium. The lineup, as it is now planned, is for Sharkey to meet Uzcudun in the first fight June 27. Schmeling probably will go into action against Jimmy Maloney at Boston soon after he comes back from Germany and then draw a bye until the final scrap of the series some time in September.

Borrell Played Third.

Fort Myers, Fla., March 14 (AP).—Nick Borrell, former Muhlenberg College star, drew the assignment at third base in the Athletics' exhibition tilt with the Philadelphia Nationals today.

The Athletics went through a fast drill in the forenoon yesterday and spent the afternoon on the golf course. Mack said the players were "coming along nicely".

Von Porat Receives Offers.

Chicago, March 14 (AP).—Otto Von Porat, angular Norwegian heavyweight who handed Tom Heeney a terrific lacing Tuesday night, has under consideration offers to meet Johnny Risko and Paulino Uzcudun. The Boston Garden wants him to meet Risko, while Promoter Jim Mullen of Chicago has offered him an engagement with Uzcudun here April 30.

Senior Sunday School Results

At the Y. M. C. A. court Wednesday night three Senior Sunday School League games were played. St. James gave Albany Avenue a trimming, 56 to 10, the Congregationals ran away from the Presbyterians, 68 to 49, and in the last game of the night the Redeemers took a hard fought game from Clinton Avenue, 38 to 30.

The St. James-Albany Avenue game was a one-sided affair. St. James got the jump and held it throughout the game. The score at half time was 22 to 4 in the St. James team's favor. In the second session the winners more than doubled their score. Albany Avenue also faired better at scoring. Corregan and Stumpf each corraled five fields for a total of ten points for the St. James team. Thomas led the list of scorers for the Albany Avenue team with 6 points beside his name.

The second game between the Presbyterians and the Congregationals was close at the start but as the game went on the Congregationals broke loose and rolled up a big lead. The score at half time was 40 to 21 in the Congregational's favor. In the second half the winners continued to score very frequently and the Presbyterians didn't miss very many shots. In the final sesion Niles and Smith of the losers sunk them from all angles of the court. Niles gathered 25 points to Smith's 10 points. "Hank" Krum was the highest individual scorer with 38 points to his credit. Cassell was next highest scorer for the Congregationals with 17 points.

The last game was the most interesting to the fans. The Redeemers had a hard time taking over Clinton Avenue. The first quarter saw Clinton Avenue start out by taking the lead. The Redeemers by making foul shots good and Dittus by making a shot from scrimmage, soon bridged the gap. The score at the end of the first quarter was 8 to 6 in the Redeemers' favor. In the second period the score was tied twice but Clinton Avenue failed to go in the lead once. Each time the Redeemers would pull away with a few points lead after the score had been tied. However Clinton Avenue had a little drive for points in the last few minutes of the second quarter and came within a point of their opponents' lead, 20 to 19. In the third quarter the Clinton team was held scoreless, while the Redeemer men sunk two deuces from scrimmage. Raichle made both of these scores for the Redeemers. The score at the end of the third quarter was 24 to 19 in the Redeemers' favor. The last period saw the score tied several times but the Redeemers' pace was too fast for the Clinton team, which resulted in them pulling away to an eight point lead, 38 to 30.

Carpino Ready for Soldier Buckley

Kingston Boy in Good Condition—Buckley Anxious to Win—Seat Sales Forecast Large Attendance—A Few Reserves Left.

Johnny Carpino of this city, who is scheduled for a setto with Soldier Buckley at the local armory on Friday night, wound up his training for the fight this afternoon. The Kingston boy is in good condition and ready to take on the tough New Yorker, who is credited with two wins over Tony Ross, who put up some good performances here and was scheduled to mix it with Carpino when the fight card was first made up.

However, it was estimated by Jimmy Ambrose, National Guard matchmaker, that Buckley, owing to his wins over Ross, would give Carpino a better fight than Tony. Buckley is said to be of the type that will take the lead in the fray, and this is just the style that Carpino likes in an opponent.

Johnny is noted for the way he can get his man coming in. Although he has not fought Buckley before and never saw him in action, the Kingston boy is banking on getting the soldier as he does his rushing for a body blow. Carpino's punching power is geared to the highest for the bout, as sparring partners will vouch for, and many of Johnny's followers expect him to take Buckley by the knockout route.

On the other hand, Buckley is a wise man in the boxing game and will resort to his store of knowledge to get over Carpino. He is eager to score a win over Johnny, whose manager, Eddie Lawson, is heralding him as a comer among the junior welters of the National Guard.

Carpino's rooters will be out in full array for Friday night's bouts, it is said. It is expected that the fight attendance will be the largest ever for the card has plenty of attracting features, among which is the heavyweight tilt between Bill Freeman, West Point negro, and Tommy Dorr of New York city. The dopesters have it that Freeman, who has been stopping all his opponents early, will have to fight harder than ever before in his mixup with Dorr.

Ticket sales also forecast a large attendance. There are a few choice chairs left and those who like to get a close-up of the bouts are advised to 'phone the armory as early as possible for reserved seats.

Two Games at Armory Tuesday

Tuesday evening of next week at the local armory court two basketball games will be staged that promises to attract a record crowd. The games will be held under the direction of Kingston Post, American Legion, which recently staged games at the armory. The contestants will be the American Legion quintet and the Y's Men and the Chandlers and the Port Ewen Knights of Pythias.

The Chandler-Knights of Pythias battle should be a bang up game. These clubs have earned reputations this season on the court that are to be rated highly. The Chandlers are a fast outfit, having been runner-up in the recent Northeastern district championship. The Knights have also a fast club and are out to secure a win over the Chandlers. In two games played this season between these quintets, the Chandlers have turned in wins.

The American Legion and Y's Men battle should also prove to be a stiff struggle. The Legion squad is large and powerful, having on its roster the following players: Murphy, Culloton, Pollock, Peters, Smith, McGrane, Wheeler and Woodard.

The Y's Men of course are a good club, having been going strong all season against stiff opposition.

Pythians Play Roamers Tonight

The Port Ewen Knights of Pythias quintet will march into battle tonight at Pythian Hall, Port Ewen, against the Flashy Roamers, who have been waiting for some time to get a shot at the much heralded Pythians. The tilt is scheduled for 8:45, and will be preceded by a game between the Trojans and Port Ewen Men's Club, which will get under way at 7:45.

The Roamers will invade Port Ewen tonight with the following battle array: Boyce, Raichle, Nash, Cahill, Stumpf, Bittner, Balinky and Robins. From this aggregation a team will be picked that is expected to give the Knights plenty of trouble. The Knights' team will be chosen from the following roster: Terwilliger, A. Short, Joyce, Van Etten, Hyatt, J. Short and W. Smith.

HIGH SCHOOL BOY IS KILLED BY HIS CHUM IN HOLDUP

Desperate Need of Money Brings Tragic End to Friendship.

Stillwater, Okla.—The high school friendship of two Bartlesville boys was brought to a tragic end when one of them shot and killed the other.

Paul Locke, nineteen, desperately wanting money, attempted to hold up Forrester Bennett, a freshman in electrical engineering at Oklahoma A. and M. college. A struggle for the revolver followed, and two shots were fired. One struck Bennett in the stomach, proving fatal; the other hit Locke in the knee.

On his deathbed Bennett identified Locke as the youth who tried to hold him up, while Locke, sobbing, tried to blurt out an apology, saying:

"I liked Forrester a lot and wouldn't have hurt him for the world. I didn't know who I was holding up until he fell to the sidewalk."

Resists Holdup.

Having finished his first semester examinations at A. and M. college, Bennett went to his home at Tuxedo, a Bartlesville suburb, over the weekend, to visit his widowed mother. Saturday night he escorted Miss Nancy Walker, also a high school classmate, to a moving picture show. On the way home a figure jumped out from behind a shadow and ordered Bennett to hold up his hands.

The Fatal Shot Was Fired.

The college boy made a lunge for the revolver and the fatal shot was fired while the boys were struggling. After Bennett sank to the sidewalk Locke withdrew and stood at a distance, watching the ambulance come for the body. Bennett died at his home a few hours after the shooting.

After seeing Bennett's body picked up Locke walked past the police station, intending to go in and make a confession, but his nerve failed him and he went home and tried to sleep, but failed, he said. Police called at his home and took him to Bennett's home and later to the police station. He readily confessed, giving all the details.

Murderer Tells His Story.

Locke told County Attorney Ed Heyl a pitiful story of how he mustered up enough courage to hold up Bennett and his girl friend. He followed them for several blocks, he said, and ran around the block to meet them. He stood behind a tree until the couple approached, and then stepped out, shoving the revolver into the ribs of Bennett. He said he had no intention of firing, and that the discharge was an accident. Bennett had forty cents in his pocket at the time of the holdup.

Bennett had made an excellent record at the A. and M. college. He was active in church work, being a member of the Presbyterian church here, and serving as secretary of the college Christian Endeavor society. He was earning his college expenses by working in the college pharmacy.

After Bennett had gone to college Locke went to work as a clerk for an oil company at Bartlesville. While he was drawing a fair wage, he said he had spent most of it and was badly in need of more funds.

Kangaroo-Rat-Kitten Twin of Perfect Pussy

Hillsborough, N. H.—While its twin sister is a perfectly formed kitten, the other one of a pair born to a cat owned by Louis Hanson possesses the features of several other animals. The face of the strange-looking animal is somewhat like a cat yet the whiskers are shorter, like those of a rat. The neck is short and the body is slate gray in color with numerous wrinkles but totally devoid of fur or hair.

The hind legs of the animal resemble those of a kangaroo, while the front legs and paws look more like a cat than any other part of the body, excepting the old and wrinkled face. The tail is long, has no fur and looks like the tail of a rat. The little animal is extremely playful and eats about the same kind of food as any cat.

tree on the right of the road. There were other cars going toward Phoenicia, traffic was heavy. The body of Mr. Connor lay on the south side of the road just below the store. The car he said, was traveling 40 miles an hour when he saw it approach.

Mrs. Lena Miller, who with Mabel Davis was in the Davis car, testified she saw no other car at the time and that she did not see the Chevrolet of Dutcher which was struck. She saw the body of a girl lying on the roadway and afterwards saw Connor's body on the bank along the road.

First Saw Cloud of Dust.

Dorothy Van Kleeck, who was on the Smith porch, first saw the car at the intersection. There was a cloud of dust, the car crossed the road to its left, struck a Chevrolet and apparently then gained speed and dashed back to the right of the road toward the Winchell store and finally overturned. It righted and ran back up the road and struck a tree.

Mrs. Grant Bell, who was on the Smith porch, testified to about the same facts and stated she had not seen another car at the time, except the Chevrolet car which was struck by the Studebaker. The Studebaker was traveling fast.

At that point a recess was taken until this morning.

Ice cream and cake will be on sale at the conclusion of the play.

Market for Fruits And Vegetables

New York, March 14 (AP).—(State Department of Agriculture and Markets) Florida celery was in moderate receipt here again today. Trading was fairly active and values further strengthened in a firm market. Celery in the rough and washed packed in 10-inch crates containing three and four dozen stalks jobbed out at $2.25 @ $2.75. Last week Florida started 646 carloads of celery to terminal markets.

Prices on California cauliflower tended upward. Supplies were moderate and the market was a trifle firmer. Sales in crates of nine and fourteen heads were made principally at $2.25 @ $2.50, occasionally $2.62 @ $2.75 on strictly fancy stock.

Of 414 carloads of cauliflower received last month, California contributed 407. The remainder originated in Arizona and Florida.

Texas spinach prices slumped. Trading was slow. Supplies were moderate. Bushel baskets of curly savoy peddled out at 60c @ 90c.

Increased receipts of new crop potatoes from Florida resulted in a slight price decline. Demand continued light. Wholesale business on double-headed barrels of the No. 1 Spaulding Rose variety was transacted at $9 @ $9.50. The market on old crop potatoes was generally dull, although price changes were few.

Mexican green peas were in moderate receipt. The market was about steady, with trading only fair. Jobbing sales on crates of approximately 45 pounds were reported as high as $7.50 and as low as $5.50. A large percentage of sales were made at $6.50 @ $7.

Last week imports of green peas from Mexico totaled 97 cars.

The market on new crop bunched beets and carrots was generally dull. The supply was moderate. Crates of four and five dozen bunches of Texas beets sold at $2.25 @ $2.75. Carrots brought $2.25 @ $3.

California asparagus was in limited receipt. The market was without decided change. Prices ranged from $6 @ $23 per dozen bunches.

Last week California moved two carloads of asparagus to market against five in the corresponding week last season.

Financial and Commercial

New York, March 14 (AP).—The stock market today broke out of the narrow trading area within which it has been fluctuating for the past fortnight with a tremendous outburst of strength.

Buying orders were distributed over a broad list of issues, a few high-priced specialties soaring 6 to nearly 25 points, while a long list of active industrials and specialties sold 1 to 5 points higher. Nearly a score moved into new high ground for the year. Trading showed a marked expansion in volume.

Call money was plentiful at the renewal figure of 7 per cent with indications that it might work lower before the day was over. Time money held firm.

Walden Girl, Not Taft, Was Right

New York, March 14 (AP).—A slight misquotation made in administering the oath of office to President Hoover has demonstrated that little pitchers have not only big ears but very sharp ones.

Examination of a transcript by the National Broadcasting Company of the inaugural program as it went on the air and a rerun of the Paramount News inaugural sound film showed today that little Helen Terwilliger, and not Chief Justice William Howard Taft, was right about the way in which the chief justice was wrong in administering the oath.

Helen listened to the radio broadcast of the inauguration with fellow members of the eighth grade history class at Walden, N. Y., and immediately took pen in hand to inform Chief Justice Taft that where he should have said "preserve, protect and defend" he actually said "preserve, maintain and defend".

The chief justice replied to acknowledge that he had misquoted but said that in reality he had said "preserve, maintain and protect".

Extend Boundaries of Shenandoah Park

Luray, Va.—Old lines first designating the boundaries of the Shenandoah National park areas have been obliterated and much new territory is added according to the new map of the United States geological survey just completed in collaboration with the Virginia state conservation and development commission.

In the new map Luray is within three miles of the park limits; Front Royal is two miles away, and six towns in Page county are either within the boundary or almost on the line.

The park is seventy miles long, and at its widest point is eighteen miles. The greatest width runs from Stanley, this county, to Wolftown, in Madison, one of the most thriving communities in the Blue ridge.

Find Minerals Vary in Action on Humans

Cold Springs Harbor, N. Y.—Classification of minerals in the human body is expected to prove valuable to doctors as the result of experiments conducted by Dr. William Salant of the University of Georgia, and the biological laboratory here.

Searching for the reason certain powerful drugs failed to bring the expected reaction, Doctor Salant discovered a definite connection with the percentage of minerals in the blood. The effect of drugs, he decided, varies according to the individual's chemical condition.

The experiments point to the time when physicians will no longer prescribe the same medicine for all persons suffering from the same illness.

Clothing Costs Cut By Care

Miss Mildred Carney, specialist in clothing from the State College of Home Economics, spoke to an interested group of Home Bureau women in the Hurley community, Wednesday afternoon. In her discussion she emphasized the fact that systematic care is one of the best ways of cutting down the clothing costs. "The well-dressed woman today does not require a large expensive wardrobe," said Miss Carney. "A few clothes carefully kept give a better appearance than many carelessly kept."

The following is a brief summary of the points brought out in the discussion:

Care prolongs the life of all clothing. To protect garments against dust and smoke, bag covers of some closely woven material may be used. Perspiration is one of the enemies of clothing. To protect against it, a lining of thin material across the shoulders and dress shields are useful. Detachable collars and cuffs which can be readily cleaned protect dresses and keep them looking fresh.

Most homemakers will find that a knowledge of the best way to brush, air, store, repair, and clean clothing pays. The woman who knows the secrets of stain removal, washing different fabrics and cleaning processes, saves in actual dollars and cents.

Prompt action is one of the essentials in economical care of the clothes. If garments are to be always in good shape ready to wear, they should be cared for immediately after they have been worn. Brushing them after each wearing removes the dust which may penetrate and harm the fabric; airing keeps them fresh; hanging them on hangers of the right size and shape cuts down the need for pressing. Tears, rips and weakened spots if repaired immediately will not grow larger. Many stains are easily removed when fresh which may become stubborn if allowed to dry or to go to the laundry.

Pressing differs with different fabrics. Cotton and linen may be sponged to make the surface evenly damp and pressed with a hot iron; wool should be pressed on the wrong side with a damp heavy muslin cloth between the iron and the wool material; silk should be pressed on the wrong side with a moderate iron and thin pressing cloth. Dry heat ruins silk.

Methods of washing differ with different fabrics and garments. Wools and silks require special care. For them mild soap, lukewarm water, squeezing rather than rubbing or wringing, are important. Rayon becomes weak when wet and therefore requires gentle treatment in laundering. Washing silks successfully necessitates quick work. Five minutes only should be taken for the whole process.

In removing stains patience is essential for success. Try removing the stain again and again before giving up. Several applications of the chemical are often more effective than using a large amount at one time.

Miss Carney brought illustrative material showing the latest and most convenient devices to aid the home maker in the proper care of clothing, all of which was much appreciated by the women present. The women of Hurley were glad to welcome visitors from the West Hurley unit.

April 2, Miss Carney gives the second lesson in the course. It deals with the removal of spots and stains and cleaning of hats. At this meeting members of the unit bring to the meeting garments from which they wish spots and stains removed, also, felt hats which they wish to have cleaned. An invitation to attend is extended to ladies in all adjoining communities.

The Gallagher living apartments were in the rear of the store and shortly after dinner while Mrs. Gallagher was in the back yard and her son, James Gallagher, at work in the garage, she saw smoke pouring out of the kitchen door. She called to her son and ran into the kitchen. Her son and some neighbors heard her call and followed her into the building from which she was removed before being overcome by smoke.

SELECT TEAM FOR OLYMPIC TRY OUTS

Present Plan Does Not Please Five Big Coaches.

In the opinion of five of the country's leading college coaches, the system of final Olympic track and field tryouts as now constituted must be junked.

Although differing as to other details, four of the five whose views are published in the current issue of the New York A. C. organ, "The Winged Foot," agree that the responsibility of picking the American team must be given to a small committee with arbitrary authority rather than to have the make-up of the team hinge entirely on the outcome of a tryout meet.

This suggestion is made in one form or another by Harry Hillman, Dartmouth; Edward L. Farrell, Harvard; Keene Fitzpatrick, Princeton, and Jack Ryder, Boston college. Harry Gill, University of Illinois, confined his recommendation to one that the final tryouts be extended "from two days to three or even four."

Voicing the apparently general feeling that the American runners left their best performances behind them when they went to Amsterdam, Hillman declared that "In Olympic year the colleges and club athletes should decrease the number of meets leading up to the big classic."

Fitzpatrick expressed the view that the normal college and club meets constitute "competition enough and we should be able to make our selection from the results."

Farrell advocated having "a pre-Olympic tryout one year preceding the final tryouts to select 50 per cent of the final team." A proposal similar to that was advanced some time ago by Jackson Scholz, Olympic athlete. Scholz' plan, which opened the discussion now taken up by the coaches, was that the selection be started the fall before the Olympic year.

Ryder's chief suggestion was that the outstanding runners and hurdlers be picked in early June and sent abroad for a month's training near the scene of the games.

"Once the first-string men have been selected," he said, "you may have your 'tryouts' for the others to make the quotas in the various events."

Williams Making Tour

Star Navy Coxswain Who Is Too Small Retires

Lack of size is a good thing for a crew coxwain, but too great a lack of size is a bad thing for a coxwain who wishes to stay in the Naval academy, as proved by the case of George W. (Shorty) Miller, an Illinois midshipman, who has been handling the lines for Navy eights for the past two years. Miller, now in the second class, has not grown enough to suit the examining surgeons, and after a hard fight, during which he did everything possible to increase his stature an inch or so, he was compelled to sever his connection with the Navy. Miller will continue his education at the University of Wisconsin, where he may get some more rowing. He steered the plebe crew which took first place at Poughkeepsie in 1927 and the second varsity which won last year.

Veteran Klem to Umpire in 1929 for National

William J. Klem, a National league umpire for 22 years, signed a contract for his twenty-third season, reconsidering an announced decision to retire.

The veteran arbiter said last November at his home in Miami, Fla., that he had umpired his last game, and later declared that he was firm in his stand. It was said that he was displeased because he was not appointed to serve as a member of the umpiring staff in the last world series.

However, in conference with President John A. Heydler, Klem declared that he had not been dissatisfied because of failure to officiate in the world series, but had become tired of his arduous and thankless task.

Bible Killed, Failed To Break Record

Racing Car Got Out of His Control As He Speeded at Daytona Beach at 202 Miles an Hour—News Reel Cameraman Also Killed.

Daytona Beach, Fla., March 14 (AP)—The nine-mile stretch of beach where the American Automobile Association holds its yearly speed trials was deserted today. Daytona Beach had entered a two-day mourning period following the culmination in death of Lee Bible's effort yesterday to break the 231-mile-an-hour record established by Major H. O. D. Segrave of England two days previously.

The death of Bible and Charles Traub, a news reel cameraman, who was crushed beneath the giant 36-cylinder Triplex racing car when it went out of control just after roaring across the mile finish mark at 202 miles per hour, also brought the official end of this year's speed trials, originally intended to extend through March 17.

Major Segrave, who before the Triplex crash had indicated he might try another run in an effort to force 240 miles an hour out of his "Golden Arrow", announced he would make no effort to break his record, in respect to Bible's widow and J. M. White, Philadelphia manufacturer and owner of the wrecked racing car.

Bible, 42, a Daytona garage mechanic, father of two children and unknown as a racing driver, was chosen for sentimental reasons by White as the driver of the Triplex, which last year set a world's mark of 207 miles per hour. Bible was one of the chief conditioners of the car at its last year's trials when it was driven by Ray Keech, and White this year decided to give the garageman a chance for fame.

Unapproved by the American Automobile Association because of his lack of experience as a race driver, Bible went onto the beach yesterday in the Triplex and roared a one way test at the rate of 180 miles an hour, a speed far too low. He made ready for his second assault against time.

Flying along at the rate of 202 miles an hour near the far end of the official mile the Triplex went out of control. Just what happened no one will ever know. The car somersaulted and barrel-rolled for 300 feet into a sand dune crowded with people.

Directly in line with the machine was Traub, a news reel cameraman. He was hit squarely, and his mutilated body was strewn along the beach by the flying car.

Bible died of a crushed head, broken back and neck, fractured legs and arms and internal injuries. He was picked up some 200 feet from where the Triplex, a twisted wreck, stopped.

Mrs. Bible was hysterical when she reached the scene and had to be taken away. Today she was under the care of a physician.

White was in seclusion at his hotel. The tragedy shook him deeply, and he declared he was "through forever". White believed the car had failed and not the driver.

Earliest Peace Pact

The first alliance or league of peace and friendship of which we have any record was confirmed by mutual oath by Abraham and Abimelech (king of Gerar) at a well dug by Abraham—which had been seized by Abimelech's herdsmen. Hence the name of the well, Beersheba, "well of the oath."

Tornado Kills Nine In South Carolina

Greenville, South Carolina, March 14 (AP).—Nine persons are dead, two are thought to be dying, and five or ten others are injured, the victims of a tornado which bored swiftly last night into Six Mile Community, a small settlement 27 miles from here.

Although the community has a population of only 200, the tornado was confined to such a narrow zone and came and went so suddenly that nearby residents took the roar for thunder, and were not aware of its true nature until they heard the cries of the injured and dying.

Four homes, a cotton gin, a church and a building of Six Mile Academy, a Baptist preparatory school, were in the zone of destruction.

All nine of the deaths reported here were caused by the collapse of two of the four homes which were struck. They included G. Nelse Garrett, a deputy sheriff, his wife and three children, and Mrs. Tillman Garrett and three daughters. An infant of the Tillman Garrett family was blown 300 yards by the wind, but was not seriously injured.

Y. W. C. A. Girls Enjoy Bowling

The bowling games conducted every Tuesday from 7 to 10 p. m. at the Y. W. C. A. building on Henry street are greatly enjoyed by the girls, who are now competing in a contest to see which one can roll the highest single game score. Many have been convinced that bowling is a very pleasant form of exercise and their urging has recruited a number of others to the ranks of pin spillers. All girls who have never tried the sport are invited to join in the games at the "Y. W." next Tuesday, when beginners will be welcomed and shown the rudiments of the game.

Miss Ruth Bell holds the present high mark for a single game which is 160. She has been awarded the blue triangle for her accomplishment. Miss Bell will have to work hard to hold the honors for sister bowlers are preparing to outscore her next Tuesday. Miss Bell's and others' scores, over the 100 mark, are as follows:

Ruth Bell	113	121	107	160

LAST NIGHT on the RADIO

The gay, vivid spirit of the pre-war Austrian capital will be re-created in "Liebesfreud", featured as saxophone solo by Andy Sannella on the Stromberg-Carlson program of March 19, given from 8:00 to 8:30, through stations of the National Broadcasting Co. This "Love's Joy" is one of a series composed by Fritz Kreisler in which the famous violinist added his own conceptions to the old Viennese dance tunes. Godfrey Ludlow, violinist, offers as his solo "Blanquita", composed jointly by him and Keith McLeod, vibraphonist of this group. Varied male quartet selections round out this program.

Gene Austin, who made "Ramona" and "Blue Heaven" famous by the manner in which he sang them, and Olive Kline, who has made herself famous as a radio soprano during the past year, will be the stellar attractions in the Chevrolet Hour of the General Motors Family Party on Monday evening, March 18. Other features of this varied and lively program will be Pietro, the accordionist; Holoua's Hawaiians; Andy Sannella's Saxophone Sextette; the Chevrolet Vocal Trio, and a novelty concert orchestra under the leadership of "Bill" Day, the well known director of George Gershwin's musical comedies.

The 114 users of the Williams Oil-O-Matic heating machines in this city and their friends will be treated on each Tuesday and Friday evenings with radio entertainments broadcasted from Station WGN, Chicago, from 8:30 to 9 o'clock, Central standard time. On Tuesday evenings the Williams Sync-O-Matics will play and on Friday evenings the Williams Mel-O-Matics will be heard.

The confidential spy of General Washington, whose dangerous work contributed much to American success in the Revolution, will live again in the Soconyland Sketch to be broadcast at 7:30 Tuesday evening through the northeastern network of the National Broadcasting company. Enoch Crosby was not an ordinary spy, for he was employed by both the British and the American forces. He thus played a role which enabled him to furnish incorrect information to the British and to provide General Washington with accurate information of the enemy's movements. Deliberately faked letters delivered by Crosby to the British commander dictated a recall of troops which resulted in the final American victory at Yorktown.

MANAGERS TALK TO CENTRAL HUDSON GIRLS

Monday evening, March 11, the Girls' Organization of the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation held their regular monthly meeting at the Home Service Auditorium on Field Court.

The tables were decorated in a color scheme of green and white with dainty green cup favors. The menu was planned by Miss Elizabeth Plank, Home Service Director, assisted by the Misses Meeker and Hinkley of the Kingston office.

Directly following the dinner, Mr. Denhardt, Catskill District manager, gave a very interesting talk on "The Distribution of Gas." Many facts on this particular subject were brought out and a better understanding prevails among the girls as to how the gas is distributed to the consumer.

Mr. Denhardt then introduced Mr. Warden, president of the Catskill Mountain Electrical League and also treasurer of the Hudson Valley Electrical League. All were glad to meet Mr. Warden and hope to enjoy his witty speeches again in the near future.

Mr. Fautsch, district manager of Coxsackie outlined "The Problem of Central Stations Concerning Radios." Mr. Fautsch was formerly with the Kingston force of radio experts and is well qualified to talk on this subject, especially in the comparison of the radio in its first stages with the radio of today.

J. Haulenbeek of the Saugerties District described in detail the history of "The High Pressure Line to Saugerties," giving facts that have led to its growth and the future possibilities of this line.

Following Mr. Haulenbeek a talk was given by Hubert Smith of the Rosendale District, who chose as his topic, "The History of the Honk Falls Power Plant at Napanoch, N. Y." Mr. Smith included in his talk many incidents that occurred during the growth of this plant which is now one of the most important stations.

A fashion show exhibiting the latest in Easter hats was then given. The hats dated back several years and showed a marked contrast to the spring styles for 1929.

Games were played. Prizes were won by Miss Helen Butler and Mr. Denhardt of the Catskill office and Miss Meeker of the Kingston office.

Besides the district managers and their wives, girls were present from Ravena, Coxsackie, Saugerties, Catskill and Rosendale.

It's true that man is more courageous than woman, but he doesn't have half as much chance to show his backbone.

ASPHALT ROADS PROVED WORTHY

Government Finds Surfacing Material Is Durable.

Realizing that the cost of construction and maintenance of state highways, county roads and city streets affects the purse or bank roll of every citizen, whether or not he owns an automobile, motor cycle, pushmobile or horse-drawn vehicle, the United States bureau of public roads in 1911 and 1912 sponsored a test of various road surfacing materials, laid on Connecticut avenue in Montgomery county, Md., immediately adjacent to Washington, D. C., and found that the asphaltic pavements, according to the official report recently issued, had proved themselves to be remarkably durable in the face of 16 years of heavy traffic duty. These experiments included seven sections of bituminous macadam, two sections of asphaltic concrete, three sections of portland cement, one section of brick pavement.

In the bureau's official report of this experiment there appears the following statement concerning the bituminous macadam sections: "Approximately 16 years have elapsed since these experimental stretches were constructed, and during this period they have carried severe traffic, and in their broken edges and repaired local failures they show the effects of the stresses and strains to which they have been subjected. Nevertheless, all are still in serviceable condition, and with continued careful maintenance should not require reconstruction for some years to come."

Concerning the behavior of the bituminous, or asphaltic, concrete and the brick sections, the report declares: "The two bituminous concrete experiments, and the two brick experiments, have required the least maintenance up to this time and are still in excellent condition, and to all appearances should continue to give economical service for sometime to come."

Meanwhile, R. W. Coburn, construction engineer of the Massachusetts state highway department, presents another report showing the comparative cost of maintenance for the various types of pavement and road surfacing materials used in the construction of the "Bay State" highways. The cost of maintenance per mile last year was as follows: "Cement concrete, $825; reinforced portland cement concrete, $545; bituminous macadam (tar and asphalt) $490; bituminous concrete, $320." Mr. Coburn also declares that on bituminous, or asphalt, macadam roads, from one to ten years old, the surface maintenance cost, which includes patching, frost breaks and surface treatment, was $124 per mile over the gravel foundations and $147 per mile over stone fills. Incidentally, the New York state highway department reports that the average age of bituminous macadam roads in that state, of which there are more than 3,000 miles, is in excess of ten years.

Paris Policemen Must Learn to Drive Autos

Ability to drive an automobile is now a requirement for all new Paris policemen.

The rule is simply that candidates who can drive get the preference in appointment but the effect has been to make men get driving licenses before applying.

Since there are only a million cars in France there are few men in the ranks who can drive, but the number has been increased by the requirement that all traffic officers must learn to handle cars.

Overlubricating Spring Shackles Is Injurious

Now that some manufacturers recommend covering springs "dry"—that is, covering them without packing the covers with lubricant—it is important to avoid overlubricating the spring shackles.

The owner of one car that is equipped with an automatic chassis lubricating system decided that he would be very generous with oil. Every day he pulled out the plunger and shot an excess of oil to the shackles, even though he did not travel far enough to warrant so much attention to these parts. And what was the result?

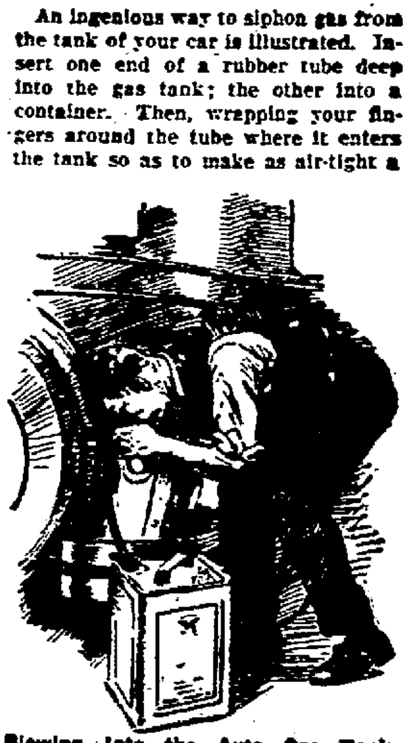
The excess of oil worked down over the spring ends and entered the covers. It wasn't long before the springs were as limber as though they had been carefully lubricated.

Overlubricating the shackles is a good way to keep the spring ends oiled, however, if your car requires this in order to get a comfortable ride.

Blowing Starts Siphon to Work on Gasoline

An ingenious way to siphon gas from the tank of your car is illustrated. Insert one end of a rubber tube deep into the gas tank; the other into a container. Then, wrapping your fingers around the tube where it enters the tank so as to make as air-tight a connection as possible, blow into the tank. The pressure will force the gasoline out.

You may find that a tighter connection can be made by wrapping your pocket handkerchief around your fingers.—Popular Science Monthly.



Blowing Into the Auto Gas Tank Forces Gasoline Through a Siphon Tube Into a Container.

MERCHANT CONSPIRED TO DISPOSE OF STOLEN BONDS

Vienna, March 14 (AP).—Eighteen months' imprisonment today faced Friedrich Rybar, Vienna merchant, after conviction yesterday on a charge of having conspired with Franz Rubis, a waiter, to dispose of bonds stolen from the mail of the S. S. Leviathan last June.

Wilhelmine Miltner, who assisted Rybar in disposing of some of the stolen bonds was acquitted after offering to return $110,000 worth of the bonds which were the property of the National City Bank of New York.
